Sales Tax Bill Amended To Levy on Utility Services

ALTERED MEASURE ALSO TO INCLUDE HOTELS, CARRIERS

House Beats Down Attempt to Table Bill; Lanier Fights for Exemption of All Necessities.

LAWMAKERS URGED TO SPEED UP WORK

Harris Wants Fund Measure To Reach Senate at Least by Wednesday.

By The Associated Press.
The house of representatives, beating down a motion to table the 3 per cent retail sales tax bill, amended the measure late yesterday to make services of public utilities, transportation companies and hotels subject to the levy.

The amendment was by unanimous consent, in contrast to stormy debate that marked consideration of other sections of the bill, as the representatives began to perfect it item by item. Speaker Roy V. Harris urged the legislators to work swiftly so that the tax measure, or a substitute, and the tabled $100,000,000 biennial appropriations bill may be sent to the senate by next Wednesday at the latest.

Urges Exemption.
Perhaps the sharpest fight of the session developed over an attempt by Representative William Lanier, of Richmond county, to exempt from the sales tax levy necessities of life, such as milk, coffee, sugar, salt, molasses, meat, flour, lard, and ice.

"If you tax these necessities," shouted the dark-haired, incisive legislator from Augusta, "you'll not be merely taking the levy out of the pockets of the poor—you'll be taking it out of their stomachs."

Lanier asserted quite frankly he intended to vote against the sales tax but urged that his amendment be included so as to protect the poor in case of passage.

Key Leads Fight.
Representative W. H. Key, chairman of the house appropriations committee, led the fight against the amendment—which the house left hanging in the air by adjourning for the night without action.

Key argued leaving the tax on the food essentials would not hurt anyone, that wage earners, even poorer ones, could afford to pay it to support state services which returned to the benefit of the unfortunate, and that farmers would not have to pay it because they can grow most of the essentials without buying them.

Representative James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county, economy advocate, shot a question at Key. "Didn't you vote this morning against taxing the millionaires by removing claims for deductions of federal income taxes from state returns?"

"I am glad to answer the gentleman," Key replied.

Parker, Near Retirement, Directs Fire Fight

On the job—with retirement March 20 just 17 days off. Fire Chief O. J. Parker was caught by the camera last night as he directed fighting of a three-alarm blaze at 283 and 281 Peters street, S. W. The fire broke out as the board of firemasters nominated Assistant Chief C. C. Styron, lower left, as head of the city's fire-fighting forces, to succeed Chief Parker. Election takes place Monday by city council.

Styron Is Nominated Chief; Parker Fights His Last Fire

Two Firemen Injured in Three-Alarm Blaze on Peters Street as Roof of Grocery Company Building Collapses.

Two firemen were injured and several others narrowly missed death or injury when a roof collapsed at the height of a three-alarm fire which swept the Peters Street Grocery Company, 283 Peters street, S. W., and spread to the adjoining Campbell Hardware Company, 281 Peters street, last night. The injured firemen were Ernest J. Baker, attached to station No. 1, and W. J. Redwine, attached to station No. 9. Baker suffered a broken rib. Redwine's right shoulder was injured. Both were treated at Grady hospital.

$20,000 Damage.
Fire Chief O. J. Parker, in command of what was probably his last big fire before he retires March 20, estimated damage to both two-story buildings at $20,000. The first alarm was sounded just as a meeting of the board of firemasters, which nominated Assistant Chief C. C. Styron to succeed Parker, was breaking up on the Alabama street fire headquarters. Styron, however, had left the session, and did not go to the fire.

Trackless trolleys on Peters street, as well as automobile traffic, were rerouted off Peters street as firemen fought the blaze. Several hundred spectators, including a man in a dinner jacket and a woman wearing an evening gown, watched the fire.

Chief Parker said the blaze started in the grocery company, and spread swiftly from basement to roof. Flames rapidly ate into the hardware building. Within a short time, interiors of both buildings were masses of flames. Smoke poured from windows.

The first alarm was sounded at 9:37 o'clock, the second at 9:58 o'clock, and the third at 10:14 o'clock. Nine pumps and three hook-and-ladders responded to the calls.

Baker was injured when the roof of the grocery company collapsed, crashing down into the building and carrying with it the second floor. He had just stepped out of a first floor door when the roof fell.

TENNESSEE VOTES REPEAL; COOPER'S VETO OVERRIDDEN

One Senate Ballot Ends 29-Year-Old Dry Rule, Permits Package Sales in Counties Going Wet.

DEFEAT OF POWER TAX BILL VIEWED

Crump Forces Predict TVA Electricity Will Escape Because of Liquor.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 2.—(UP)—Tennessee today became the 45th state to repeal its prohibition laws.

The 29-year-old law forbidding sale of intoxicating liquors was repealed when both the house and senate overrode Governor Prentice Cooper's veto of a local option liquor bill written by Representative Lon Austin and Senator Lester Doak.

The vote to override the Governor in the senate was 17 to 16. The house passed the bill 55 to 38.

Thus, sale of legalized liquor in Tennessee possibly was only 40 days away. The law provides that counties may call local option elections on petition of 10 per cent of the voters. The elections may be called any time 40 days after the date of the enactment.

Cooper vetoed the bill because it did not conform to a platform pledge he had made during his campaign for Governor. He returned the bill to the legislature just a few minutes after the house had concurred in senate amendments attached yesterday.

The senate first passed the bill yesterday by a vote of 18 to 15. It had been passed by the house the day before by a vote of 52 to 42.

The measure does not allow selling of mixed drinks. It provides for sale of liquor in package form in counties where it is legalized by elections.

Senate amendments, all minor, were approved by the house after little debate.

As a result of passage of the liquor bill, the Shelby county (Memphis) delegation predicted quick defeat of a bill to levy a tax on Tennessee Valley Authority power distributed by city-owned systems if it were brought to a vote.

This bill, sponsored by Cooper, would levy a three per cent gross receipts tax on electricity. He had drawn the measure as "stop gap" legislation to replace more than $1,000,000 revenue to be lost to the state through sale of private utilities to municipalities. Forces of Political Boss Ed Crump, of Memphis, asserted that the tax on liquor would render the power revenue bill unnecessary.

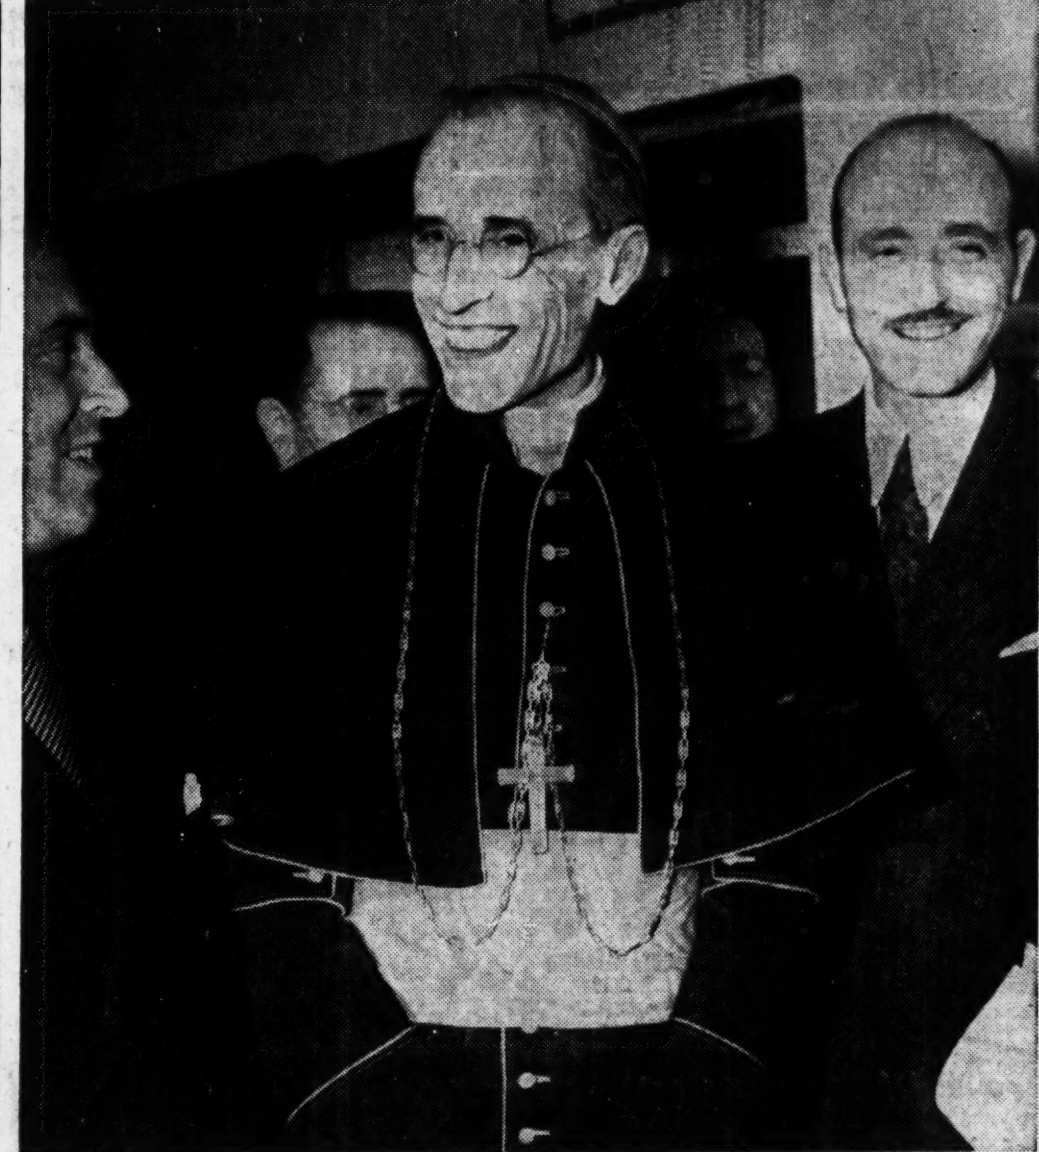

With liquor legislation out of the way, the dam holding up numerous bills was broken. Sponsors of a bill to legalize horse racing planned to bring up their measure tomorrow.

Sealer Going Under; Seas Prevent Rescue

HALIFAX, N. S., March 2.—(Canadian Press)—The sealer, Ranger, wallowed in heavy seas off the southwest coast in a sinking condition tonight while radio messages said the steamship Newfoundland had taken aboard 18 members of the Ranger's crew of 150.

The Newfoundland was standing by in an effort to tow the veteran sealing vessel into shelter, the weather too rough to take off the rest of the crew.

East Coast Radio here intercepted a message from Captain Richard Badcock saying it was "impossible to keep afloat."

Pope Pius XII, who was Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state until his election on the third ballot yesterday by the college of cardinals. The new head of the Catholic church is pictured as he smiled a greeting to America on arrival in New York in 1936. He is perhaps the first Pope ever to have visited the United States.

ANTI-SOUTH BLOC FIGHTS RATE BILL

Committeemen Prepare to Kill Action on Plea for Equitable Schedule.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Urging congress to leave the re-adjustment of freight rates in the hands of the ICC, some half dozen rate experts today testified before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce in opposition to the Ramspeck and other bills designed to end discriminating rail transportation rates.

The witnesses, representing Indiana, Michigan, North Dakota, Illinois and Louisiana, contended that the many technicalities and complexities of rate making are too hot for congressmen to handle and that inasmuch as the ICC was created to fix rates the commission should proceed with this task unhampered by congressional fiat.

Opponents' Day.

Testimony during the last two days of the hearings had been confined to witnesses appearing in support of legislative proposals to revamp the national rate structure. It was the first day, therefore, that the committee heard opponents of the plan.

Informal comments made during the course of the hearings by committee members indicated strongly that the house group will take no action toward linking the rate question with the new general transportation bill which it is now considering.

This much was gathered from a

Autoist Crashes Kitchen In Time for Breakfast

RICHMOND, Va., March 2.—(AP)—Sherman Anderson's unwitting guest came in like a lion upon the first day of March—and almost lamed him. The guest, Ipe Smith, arrived with a rush at the breakfast table—still seated in his automobile after it crashed through the kitchen wall.

Atlanta Pastors Hail Peace-Loving Pope

Satisfaction over election of Cardinal Pacelli as successor to Pope Pius XI and confidence that the new pope would continue working in the interest of world peace were expressed yesterday by leading Protestant ministers of the city. While a majority stated they had not given the matter close thought and had no comment to make, they were unanimous in the opinion that the election of Cardinal Pacelli augured well for democratic policies.

Among those commenting were: REV. THEODORE S. WILL, rector of All Saints Episcopal church;

"All Americans will feel highly gratified at the election of a pope who is so well known for his favoring of the western democracies. We wonder what effect Cardinal Pacelli's election will have on the political situation in Europe."

"It is highly significant that the Nazi official newspaper, 'Berlin Angriff,' which presumably speaks for the Rome-Berlin axis, some day ago warned that Cardinal Pacelli (Pius XII) is the leader of a party in the church which is in sympathy with the ideology of the democratic states."

DR. LOUIE D. NEWTON, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church;

"I think we can be particularly grateful that the election of Cardinal Pacelli insures the same leadership for world peace as that of his distinguished predecessor. The Christian world can rest assured that he will not be influenced either by Hitler or Mussolini in the discharge of his duties."

DR. C. R. STAUFFER, pastor of First Christian church, and president of the Atlanta Christian Council;

"While I have not given the matter much thought, I think they (College of Cardinals) did wisely in selecting Cardinal Pacelli as the new pope, as he is better fitted to carry on the peace program of his predecessor Pope Pius XI."

DR. EDWARD G. MACKAY, pastor of First Methodist church; "The election of Cardinal Pacelli indicates that the policies of Pope Pius XI will be continued. These policies were looked upon favorably by Protestant leaders of the world emphasizing as they did religious liberty and world peace."

PONTIFF ELECTED BY THIRD BALLOT ON 63D BIRTHDAY

262d Head of Catholic Church Named in One of History's Shortest Conclaves; 150,000 Cheer

FIRST POPE TO HAVE VISITED IN AMERICA

Many Precedents Broken; Only Roman Elevated in More Than 2 Centuries

VATICAN CITY, March 2. (AP)—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli was elected Pope today and took the name of Pius XII on his sixty-third birthday in one of history's shortest conclaves. He was chosen on the third ballot in the first day of voting.

He became the 262nd pontiff, spiritual ruler of 331,500,000 Catholics and temporal sovereign of Vatican City just 20 days after the death of Pius XI, whom he served as papal secretary of state for eight years.

He is perhaps the first Pope ever to have been in the United States. As papal secretary of state he went there in 1936 and was received by President Roosevelt.

People fainted in the crush of 150,000 faithful who jammed St. Peter's square to receive the benediction of the tall, thin and ascetic diplomat who was raised by his brother princes of the church to the vicarage of Christ.

Popular Election.
It was a popular election accomplished in three ballots within 24 hours after the 62 cardinals, the full membership of the sacred college, had been locked in secret conclave.

How many votes he received on the first balloting and how many on the last may never become known. But he is rumored to have received a majority at the outset which was carried to the required two-thirds in the subsequent tallies.

There in the Sistine Chapel, still in secret, the ritual provided for the picturesque ceremony surrounding the acceptance by the Pope of his election, the obedience of the cardinals and his appearance.

BUILDING IS SOLD IN BUCKHEAD AREA

R. L. Jones Purchases Property on Peachtree Road.

Sale of a building under lease to the A. & P. Stores, at 3135 Peachtree road, in the heart of Buckhead business district, was reported Thursday. It was purchased by R. L. Jones from Consolidated Realty Investments, Inc., for a price understood to be about $50,000. The sale was negotiated and announced by John C. Baldwin Jr., vice president of Draper-Owens Company, realtors.

The purchaser gave as part-payment four vacant lots fronting 400 feet on Pace's Ferry road, valued at about $15,000, and the balance in cash. The building on the Buckhead lot measures 75x130 feet, on a lot 100x330 feet, and under the five-year aggregate rental of $27,000, with an option for another five years at an aggregate rental of $30,000. Titles were examined and insured by the Lawyers' Title Insurance Corporation.

TVA DRAFTS CONTRACT.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 2.—(UP)—Drafting of a formal contract for purchase of Tennessee Electric Power Company properties by Tennessee Valley authority and its client cities was expected to get under way soon with J. A. Krug, chief power engineer for TVA, and city officials conferring on the matter today.

POWER TO RETIRE BOND ISSUE ASKED

House Bill Affects East Point, College Park.

Proposals to permit the Fulton county school department to retire $148,000 in outstanding bonds of the East Point and College Park school systems, consolidated with Fulton, were offered yesterday in the Georgia house of representatives.

The measure is in the form of a constitutional amendment, and provides that the $82,000 owed by East Point schools and the $66,000 in obligations issued by College Park be retired by Fulton county. It also empowers Fulton school system to levy a tax to retire the securities.

Both the suburban systems were merged with Fulton county several years ago, but the bonds were issued prior to the consolidation.

Judge Florence Allen Advanced
For High Court by Atlanta Women

Fulton Democratic Club Forwards Resolutions to President Roosevelt.

Appointment of Judge Florence Allen, of the fifth United States circuit court of appeals, to the supreme court of the United States has been urged by the Fulton County Democratic Woman's Club. Resolutions endorsing Judge Allen for the post vacated by Justice Brandeis were forwarded to President Roosevelt yesterday.

Judge Allen is the only woman member of the federal bench. She was admitted to the bar in 1914. Before taking up law she was widely known as a music critic and suffrage leader.

Judge Allen recently presided over the three-judge court which heard the action of 18 private utility companies against the Tennessee Valley Authority at Chattanooga.

She is 54 years old and unmarried. While she was appointed from Ohio to the circuit court, she is a native of Utah, where her father was the first congressman from that state.

Atlanta Democratic women consider that her appointment would satisfy both the middle west and the far west.

TUNNEL AT BOLTON HALF COMPLETED

600 Working Full Shifts on 3,500-Foot Project.

Work on the 3,500-foot tunnel starting near Bolton, south of the N. C. & St. L. and the Southern Railway tracks and emerging near the R. M. Clayton sewage disposal plant, is about half complete, it was announced yesterday by engineers.

The tunnel is 100 feet below the earth's surface in places and 600 men are engaged on the work 24 hours each day. Workmen have rubber suits to protect them from excess moisture and extraordinary precautions are taken to prevent accidents.

Completion of the project by mid-June was forecast yesterday as engineers concentrated on efforts to place the Clayton unit, the largest in Fulton county in operation at the earliest possible time.

A peak in Wyoming has been named Mount Wister in honor of Owen Wister, American novelist, who spent many years in the region.

SALLY SAVER'S FAVORITE RECIPE CONTEST

Are you using corn meal as often as you should for the health and enjoyment of your family? And have you a favorite and unusual recipe that you will share with us so that we too may serve it?

Please send your corn meal recipes to Sally Saver today so they reach her by Tuesday of next week and for each letter published Sally will send you a $1.00.

Sally believes a contest on corn meal recipes will bring to light some unusually fine and delicious dishes.

SALVATION ARMY
WILL OPEN RALLY10-Day Youth Session Starts Tonight.

Salvation Army corps of the southern territory will open a ten-day "youth rally" tonight, it was announced yesterday at territorial headquarters here. The program will begin with a meeting at 7:45 o'clock at the Army Temple, 54 Ellis street.

Four local corps will attend the meeting here, as will delegations from Rome, Griffin, Macon, Columbus and Anniston, Ala. Speakers will include Lieutenant Commissioner and Mrs. Ernest Pugmire, Captain Robert Marsalis and Captain Eunice Ward. Music will be furnished by the Girls' State Military Band, the Boys' High Glee Club, and Ernest Cross, of the Atlanta Boys' Club, who will sing several vocal selections.

Meetings will be held each day at the respective headquarters of the four local corps, Lakewood, Bellwood, Fulton Village and Ellis street. Invitation has been extended to all young people of the city.

MINSTRELS PLAN
OF OPTIMIST CLUBOrganization Seeks to Send 1,000 Boys to Camp.

The Atlanta Optimist Club will present a minstrel show at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, March 21, in the city auditorium as first step in their drive for $5,000 to send 1,000 underprivileged boys to camp again next summer.

Last year the minstrel show was adopted to raise funds and as a result more than 500 boys each were given a week at camp. The success of last year's show has prompted the club to try and raise a double amount this year.

The boys are sent to Lake Rutledge for their week's vacations. The lake is a federal project complete with central lodges, mess halls, campers' and leaders' cabins, a large expanse of woods and a 300-acre lake. Approximately 100 boys are accommodated at a time.

Complete plans and program for the minstrel show will be announced later, E. G. Thomas, chairman, announced last night.

A Dainty Dish

Starlight Salad, an intriguing combination of pineapple and cheese, deserves a place of honor whenever it is served.

Starlight Salad

Place a slice of pineapple, after coring, on lettuce leaves. In center of pineapple put a small cheese ball, sprinkled with finely chopped parsley. Cut five pieces of pimento in triangular shape, place around the cheese ball to form a five-point star, or use halved fresh strawberries instead of pimento. Chill in ice box before serving.

For dressing use: One-third strained chili sauce, two-thirds mayonnaise, a little vinegar. Mix well, and add some freshly chopped parsley before serving. Leave off parsley when using strawberries, and use a honey salad dressing.

HOME TESTED RECIPES

BY Sally Saver

Questions about recipes or menus will be answered if you will write or phone the editor of this column at Walnut 6565.

It's for more and better breakfasts that the foodsters are now campaigning. It's an anti-pseudo-and-run crusade that should enlist the support of every homemaker who loves her husband and family.

Tests Prove Speed.

Tests conducted by various gas and electric companies prove that a hot and nourishing breakfast can be prepared in six to ten minutes, once a system is developed. It's a matter of having your utensils handy, your range in order, and a system.

Of course the orange or grapefruit juice will continue to be served cold, refreshing and healthfully gulpable as always.

The coffee will not be made the night before nor reheated—never—but you can measure out the coffee (a heaping tablespoon to each measuring cup of water) and have your coffee maker clean and ready, and the cups at hand to receive the amber fluid that tastes so good and smells so delightful.

Hot Foods.

Good breakfasts include a good cereal (have you tried heating the ready-to-serve cereals and serving them with hot milk or cream or sprinkling a dry cereal over a hot one? Bananas sliced over the cereal insure its being eaten, every smidge).

Muffins and quick breads and "dressed up" toast are change-ringers. Oh, before you know it, the family will be rising quickly, like the Air Express, and you yourself can be as snug as a new galosh in the snow!

Sally Saver's Favorite Recipe Contest.

Here's an amusing salad and something quite different. Mrs. T. O. White, Route 3, Flat Shoals road, Atlanta, suggests it as her favorite party salad recipe. It would be delightful for April Fool's Day.

Mrs. White's April Fool Salad.
Arrange two tablespoons of whipped cream on a nest of lettuce leaves to form the whites of eggs; inverted on the top of whipped cream are two halves of peeled apricots to resemble the "sunny side up" of egg yolks. Two thick slices of banana, sizes of bacon strips arranged on the lettuce and streaked with lines of chocolate and red fruit coloring to provide the bacon to accompany the eggs and you have bacon and egg salad—believe it or not.

"Pretty as a picture and good to the last bite" is the party salad suggested by Mrs. Dorsey Davis, Box 583, Athens, Ga., and one that is very popular. Do not grate cheese ahead of time or handle after grating, as the beauty of the plate lies in the strings lying as they fall from the grater. If everything is placed within reach, a dozen plates can be prepared by one person in just a few minutes.

Mrs. Davis' Pear and Cheese Salad.

Crisp lettuce
Canned pears (large sized cans)
American cheese
Mayonnaise or salad dressing
Stuffed olives
Drain pear slices well before beginning.

Arrange lettuce on individual plates. Place 1 1/2 slices of pear (or 2 whole slices if preferred), into this hollow grate cheese, using large side of grater, so that the cheese may fall in round strings, until pear slices are nearly covered, but not quite. Place a generous helping of mayonnaise on top of this but do not spread. Adorn with an olive in the center. Serve with unsweetened crackers.

A molded party salad solves many problems for the hostess. Tuna fish is a favorite with almost everyone. Mrs. P. D. Simmons, 1176 Briarcliff place, N. E., Atlanta, shares her recipe with us.

Mrs. Simmons' Tuna Fish Salad.
1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2 cups tuna fish
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup pickle relish
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Soak the gelatin in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve over boiling water. Flake the tuna fish in pieces, add celery, relish, salt, paprika, and mayonnaise. Add the dissolved gelatin, mix well and put into individual molds which have been dipped in cold water. Place in refrigerator to congeal or until ready to serve. Serve in nests of lettuce or water cress, and garnish with celery curls and rings of green pepper.

Browned Parsnip Cakes
6 cooked parsnips (mashed)
1/2 teaspoon minced onions
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
4 tablespoons flour
6 tablespoons fat
Mash parsnips. When hot, add seasoning, butter and crumbs. Shape into half inch thick cakes. Sprinkle with flour and brown in fat in frying pan.

Grapefruit Salad.
1 cup grapefruit segments
1/2 cup chopped cress
1/2 cup French dressing
Garlic
Soak small piece garlic 5 minutes in dressing and then discard.

Pears Caramel.

6 halves canned pears
1 1/2 cups dark brown sugar
1/2 cup pear juice (or water)
1/4 cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Place pears in shallow buttered baking dish. Cover with other ingredients, boiled four minutes. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Pan Fried Bacon With Poached Eggs on Toast Circles.

Place bacon strips in cold frying pan and fry slowly, turning often for about eight minutes, or until crisp, but not brittle. Pour off fat as it accumulates. Save fat for seasoning and frying.

Poached Eggs.

Place about one inch of salted water in frying pan or shallow sauce pan and bring to a boil. Turn fire down to keep water simmering. Break eggs, one at a time into sauce dish and transfer carefully to water. Water should not quite cover yolks. Baste with water until eggs are firm enough to remove to circles of toast. Top each with a dash of paprika.

Cocoanut Krispy Cake.

2 1/2 cups fat
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 eggs
3 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Cream fat and sugar thoroughly. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add alternately with combined milk and flavoring to creamed mixture. Beat well. Fold in egg whites, beaten until stiff but not dry. Pour batter into greased cake pan lined with waxed paper.

2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded cocoanut
1 cup corn flakes
1/2 cup chopped nut meats
For topping—beat eggs well, add brown sugar, gradually and continue beating until light and fluffy. Add flavoring, salt, cocoanut, corn flakes and nut meats. Mix well. Drop by the spoonful on top of unbaked cake batter and spread evenly. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) about 45 minutes.

Yield: 1 large loaf cake (9x13 inch pan).

WOMEN TO DISCUSS MEASURES TODAYDeKalb League of Voters
Takes Up State Bills.

The DeKalb League of Women Voters will discuss all bills of interest to women now before the general assembly at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the DeKalb county courthouse at Decatur. All interested organizations in the county have been invited to have representatives present.

Each bill will be reported on by a member and will be discussed by the league. Senator Paul Lindsay and Representatives Murphree Candler, Augustine Sams and Mel Turner have been invited to attend.

Those who will present bills for discussion include Mrs. W. G. Bryant, taxation; Mrs. Frank B. Bond, child welfare; Mrs. O. P. Bray, home rule; Mrs. T. W. Ayres, civil service; Mrs. J. B. Dickey, milk bill; Mrs. I. H. Owen, health certificates before marriage; Mrs. Roy Staples, secret ballot, and Mrs. Cleve Webb, cattle off the highway. Jury service for women, hospitals for mild mental cases, and uniform traffic systems also will be reported on.

FORREST TO END
SERVICES SUNDAYWife To Take Part in Final Tabernacle Program.

Dr. R. A. Forrest, president of the Toccoa Falls Bible Institute, who has been conducting a series of evangelistic meetings at the Atlanta Gospel Tabernacle for the past week, will close the special services Sunday night, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. Ira E. David, pastor. The services will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Forrest, who for a number of years conducted a Bible class in Atlanta, is expected to take part in the program Sunday night.

A Pie To Be Proud Of—It's Banana Chiffon!

You may be proud of yourself—and "no wonder" from your guests, when you serve banana chiffon pie, a creamy, luscious combination of golden bananas and fluffy whipped cream—pretty as the picture illustrated here! The recipe for banana chiffon pie is easy when made according to this recipe:

Banana Chiffon Pie
1 1/2 teaspoons granulated gelatin
1/2 teaspoon cold water
1/2 cup mashed banana (two or three bananas)
1/2 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 teaspoon sugar
2 egg yolks, beaten
1/2 egg white
1 eight-inch pie shell

Softened gelatin in cold water. Mix banana and lemon juice, add lemon and orange rind, three tablespoons of sugar, egg yolks and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat, add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff enough to form peaks. Then add remaining two tablespoons sugar gradually while continuing to beat. Fold in banana mixture. Fill pie shell. Keep in cool place to stiffen. Top with whipped cream if desired. Makes one eight-inch pie.

HURT MY FEELINGS!

SAY—BEFORE SHE BEGAN USING JEWEL
HER PIE CRUST USED TO BE SO TOUGH
IT ACTUALLY HURT MY TEETH!

Treat your family to tender pie crust ... made with Jewel Shortening!

IS YOUR FAMILY too polite to criticize your pie crusts? Or do you give them the tender, flaky kind they honestly enjoy right down to the last bite? ... the kind it's so easy to make with Jewel?

Jewel has greater shortening power, and creams faster, than the most "expensive type" of all-vegetable shortenings. You see, it's a special blend of fine vegetable fats with other bland cooking fats!

This means extra richness, extra flavor in your pies, biscuits, cakes and fried foods. No wonder so many wealthy Southern families prefer Jewel. No wonder it's been the favorite of the South for generations! And no wonder you always get it creamy-fresh ... because it sells so fast your dealer is always getting fresh new supplies of Jewel.

And, here's more good news! Jewel actually costs 3¢ to 6¢ per pound less than the "expensive type" shortenings! So start today to enjoy this famous shortening. Look for the original red carton.

PETAÏN APPOINTED TO POST IN SPAIN

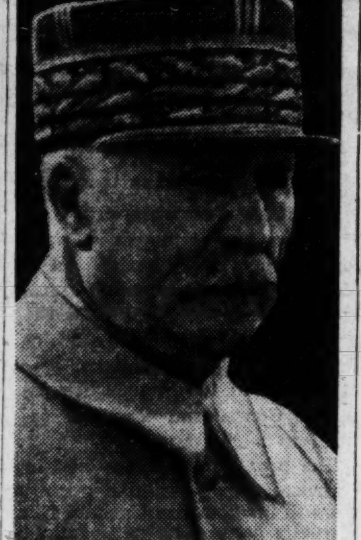

World War Hero Taught Franco in France Years Ago at Army School.

PARIS, March 2.—(P)—Marshal Henri Philippe PetaÏn, who taught Generalissimo Francisco Franco many years ago at France's War College, was named ambassador to Nationalist Spain today in the hope he would win his former pupil away from Italian and German influence.

The appointment of the 82-year-old World War hero, leader of the defense of Verdun, coincided with a new French effort to bring the 31-month-old civil war to an end with unconditional surrender of the Spanish Republicans.

Co-operation with the Nationalists to close French ports to shipments of all supplies to Republican territory was one of the first evidences of pressure on the Madrid regime.

The French action served to illustrate a declaration to the chamber of deputies' foreign affairs committee by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet that France and Great Britain were working to give Nationalist Spain a quick victory while Italy seemed to desire continuation of hostilities.

An explanation of this paradoxical situation was advanced by official assertions that the Fascists wished to keep their troops in Spain as a threat to France while the two western democracies were assured by the Nationalists that the Italians would leave immediately the conflict ended.

Official Nationalist dispatches from Burgos said fresh revolutionary plots had broken out in Spanish Republican territory.

Three Republican naval commanders were alleged to have been sentenced to death because they "were disgusted with the proposal of government leaders to install offices aboard destroyers."

Other reports made public by Burgos authorities were that three Republican political leaders had been shot at Murcia and that anarchists "continued" sacking and burning public buildings in Guadalajara, Murcia and Toledo provinces.

Nationalists also alleged that the Republican committee at Murcia was drafting plans to send warships out of Spanish waters rather than let them be captured by the Nationalists.

Burgos reports said 299 persons had been arrested in Madrid for supporting surrender.

In London, the British government approved the Nationalist request that the Duke of Alba be named Nationalist charge d'affaires, indicating that he would not be Franco's ambassador to the court of St. James, as had been expected.

AMERICAN SYSTEM OUTLINED TO LIONS

International President Addresses Georgia Members at Banquet Here.

Relationships existing between an individual and his society under the American form of government were explained last night at a banquet of Georgia Lions Clubs by Walter F. Dexter, of California, international president.

The banquet, held at the Atlanta Athletic Club, was attended by more than 300 Georgia educators and members. Dexter spoke on "Lionism, a Way of Life."

"Two problems confront the American system of government today," he said. "These are, first, how can society succeed without stifling the individual, and second, how can the individual succeed without disrupting society."

The solution, Dexter declared, lies in an "ordered liberty." This, he said, gives the individual a chance for success, but at the same time imposes a responsibility which also insures the success of society.

"This solution," he said, "lies in the American method of government."

Dexter was introduced by Dr. H. L. Barker, district governor of Lions International. Ollie Reeves, president of the Atlanta Lions Club, was toastmaster.

RUMORS CHECKED BY POLICE BOARD

Heath Record To Be Probed Tonight.

Investigation of rumors concerning the record of Cuba Heath, elevated to the post of lieutenant in the police department Monday night, will be made at a meeting of the police committee of city council at its meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight, Chief Hornsby said last night.

In view of the fact that these rumors are circulating, I am going to ask the police committee to make a fair investigation," the chief said.

The chief already has conducted a personal investigation of Heath's record and announced he was unable to find anything that would warrant any rumors whatsoever. The meeting tonight, it was explained, is intended to clear any dispute over his elevation to a lieutenant.

Other sources revealed several officials would be subpoenaed to appear before the committee and explain the rumors.

Lions Hear Address of International President Here

Coronation Rites of Superlative Beauty

Three Times During Gorgeous Ceremony, New Pope Will Be Reminded of Fleetness of Glory.

ROME, March 2.—(P)—Coronation, one of the most gorgeous ceremonies of the Roman Catholic church, awaits Pope Pius XII although he acceded to the throne of St. Peter from the moment the two-thirds majority of the secret conclave chose him.

In the old days the coronation ceremonies were not confined within the Vatican City limits. Pontiffs who ruled by civil and military as well as spiritual right were drawn by splendidly caparisoned spans of white mules and accompanied by mounted knights in sumptuous military procession to take possession of St. John Lateran, the Quirinale palace and other seats of the old Roman government.

Today their processions are held within St. Peter's, but what they miss in military pomp they make up in awesome solemnity.

Coronation of a Pope is one of the lengthiest of Vatican ceremonies requiring the presence of the papal court almost a full day.

Superlative Spectacle. It is replete with religious symbolism, rich in inspiration for the devout, superlative as a spectacle for the Catholic or non-Catholic sightseer.

The new pontiff must rise early to prepare himself. At 8:30 a. m. he, his immediate court, and the Sacred College leave the papal apartments and descend to the Chapel of the Sacrament in St. Peter's.

There the pontiff is dressed in papal robes, mantle, and cloth of gold mitre by many attendants. Seated on the throne of the same chapel the Pope then receives the obeisance of the chapter and clergy of St. Peter's led by the cardinal high priest.

After the obeisance in which cardinals kiss his hand and slipper, bishops his foot and knee, and others his slipper, ritual requires the Pope to walk in procession to the Chapel of Holy Relics there to adore the sacrament.

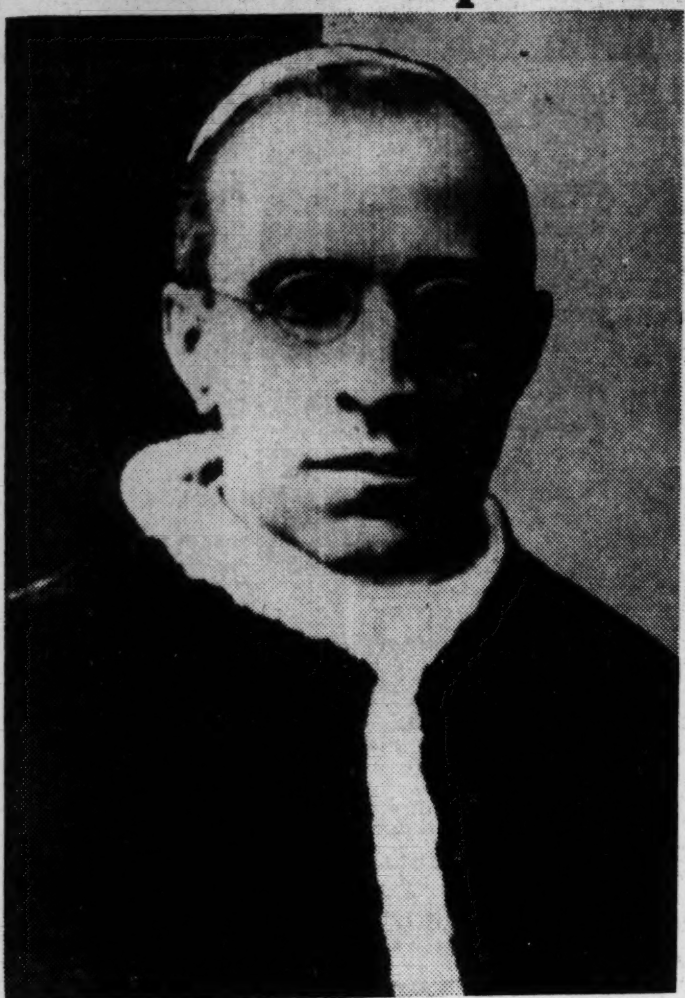

Headed by Guards. During the interval the main cortege forms and begins to move down the great nave of St. Peter's, headed by Swiss guards. In this procession toward the altar a ceremonial officer carries the triple-crowned tiara of gold leaves capped by a blue enamel ball and diamond cross.

Longhi's "Triumphal March" sounded by six silver trumpets high in one of the great arches gives the crowd its first sure knowledge of the presence of the Pope. The march begins when the pontiff, borne on the "sedia gestatoria," or portable throne, joins the procession. In procession, officers of the noble and Swiss guards, resplendent in their full dress, march beside the throne. Attendants on either side wave huge ostrich feather fans about the portable throne.

Vatican etiquette permits cheering even within the church. When the late Pope Pius XI moved in procession, St. Peter's was invariably jammed with 50,000 frantically cheering faithful, many of whom held their babies aloft to receive the Pope's glance and blessing.

Dozens of rites, each performed with measured tread, mark the coronation after the Pope enters. Again he receives the obeisance of the cardinals, this time in the chapel of St. Gregory.

Fleetness of Glory. He recites the "Nona," or ninth hour, and is assisted into vestments for the pontifical mass which is celebrated at the altar and the confession. Three times dur-

First picture of Pope Pius XII after his election yesterday by the Congress of Cardinals at the Vatican. This picture shows the former Cardinal Pacelli after he had donned the pontifical robe and white skull cap—designating the highest office in the church. He gave his cardinal's scarlet cap to another of the cardinals as a memento.

Cell 13 Occupied By Cardinal Pacelli

VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(P)—The superstitious might have regarded Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, today elected to the throne of St. Peter's, as the cardinal least likely to become Pope.

The conclave cell he occupied was number 13. It was the simple room he had occupied as papal secretary of state during the reign of his predecessor, Pope Pius XI, and, as Pius XII, he planned to spend the first night of his own reign there.

ing the procession to this altar, the papal master of ceremonies kneels before him, compelling him to stop. Burning a wisp of tow as a reminder of the fleetness of glory, he proclaims: "Pater sanctem sic transit gloria mundi."

The actual coronation takes place on a platform near the altar of the confession. There, his portable throne surrounded by cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops, bishops and abbots, the Pope hears the choir sing the "Golden Crown Upon His Head."

After further prayers and ritual the cardinal penitential lifts the golden tiara from its cushion and places it upon the Pope's head, solemnly intoning in Latin:

"Receive thou the tiara adorned with three crowns and know that thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of the universe, the vicar of our Saviour Jesus Christ, to whom is honor and glory from century to century."

CARDINAL PACELLI IS ELECTED POPE

ance before the crowd massed in St. Peter's square.

Ceremonial officers were admitted. They lowered the canopies over the chairs of all but Pacelli.

The Pope-elect was asked in Latin if he would accept and with his formal assent recorded he became Pope in fact.

The Pope was arrayed in the robes which had been provided in three sizes. Each of the 61 cardinals knelt before him, kissed his hand in sign of homage and was lifted in his feet and embraced and kissed by the Pope.

Ring Puff on Finger. Then the fisherman's ring, symbol of St. Peter's heritage, was placed on his finger and withdrawn to be engraved with his name.

His Holiness was escorted to the balcony, where he appeared before the multitude of faithful and subsequently a second obedience by the cardinals was made in the Sistine Chapel.

It was not until after the second obedience that the doors of the secret conclave, locked last night, were opened.

The three United States cardinals left the Vatican after the conclave was ended and withdrew to their Rome residences.

Cardinal O'Connell and Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, were staying at separate hotels while George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, was at the College of St. Mary of the Lake after the elevation of Cardinal Pacelli. His quick election broke several precedents of recent conclaves.

It came in one day. It was in the afternoon; it placed a native Roman at the head of the Roman Catholic church; and it was broadcast.

Not since 1821, when Gregory XV was chosen, has a conclave acted so promptly.

Not since 1721, when Innocent XV was elected, has the college of cardinals made a Roman the bishop of Rome and sovereign pontiff of the Catholic world.

Policies of Pius XI. Vatican prelates and Italians alike expected Pius XII, a member of a noble Roman family long prominent in church affairs, to carry on in many respects the policies of Pius XI.

But many also expected the new pope to show an even wider acquaintance with world affairs, his actions and pronouncements.

Not only has he visited the United States, but he went to South America in 1934—as papal legate to the thirty-second international eucharistic congress in Buenos Aires—and he was expected to seek diplomatic relations with the former and give fatherly attention to the spiritual needs of the latter.

His policy toward Nazi Germany, however, will be watched with the greatest of interest. It is with that country perhaps that Vatican relations are least satisfactory.

Familiar with Germans.

He is all the more familiar with Germans for having been papal nuncio in Germany during the latter part of the World War and afterward and for negotiating the concordat of 1929.

In dealing with Reichsfuehrer Hitler on the treatment of Catholics in Germany, Pius XII was expected to show a comparative youth—though 63 he is well under the average age of the cardinals.

But he is known as an astute diplomat and there are many who say he has talents qualifying him to restore better relations not only with Germany but with Fascist Italy, which was accused by his predecessor of wounding the Lateran accord of 1929 by its racial policy.

The 27 foreign cardinals, among whom are three from the United States, generally were believed to have brought about his election, showing such a united front for him that Italians quickly fell in line to give him the necessary majority.

And the foreign cardinals were considered by many lay observers to favor democratic tendencies, rather than those of dictatorship.

This was held especially true of the Americans, among whom George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, has been an outspoken critic of Adolf Hitler, and the French, whose people are faced with demands on their territory by Fascists.

March 12 Expected.

Although the new Pope has not yet chosen his coronation date, he is expected to select Sunday, March 12, which happens to be St. Gregory's Day in the Catholic calendar.

There were some, however, who thought that arrangements might be speeded up so the papal tiara with its three gold crowns could be placed on his head next Sunday.

Impressive were the scenes in St. Peter's Square, where the spectators were tense with excitement, when a waver of fumes from the burning ballots in the Sistine Chapel's stove—almost too pale and faint to be called smoke—rose from the slender chimney above the papal palace.

The white smoke, traditional symbol of a pontiff's election, issued from the chimney at 5:30 p. m. (5:15 a. m., Atlanta time), had signified the failure of a candidate to receive the required 42 of the 62 votes in the two morning ballots.

As the thin wisp of light smoke curled upward and the great balcony, cheers from thousands of throats reverberated in the great piazza and echoed in the celebrated Bernini Colonnade.

"Il Papa e' fatto," some shouted. "Abbiamo un Papa!" ("The Pope is made. We have a pope!")

"Viva il Papa." The spectators surged up the steps of St. Peter's, standing as close as they could pack beneath the balcony over the main doors. Thousands of others swarmed into the square, some learning of the election by radio and others by word of mouth.

"Viva il Papa!" ("Long live the Pope!") they cried.

The bells of St. Peter's rang joyously, soon joined by the peals of bells of other churches.

It was not for some time, however, that the big central windows of St. Peter's over the main door opened and from the balcony servants hung a large square of white satin bordered with red velvet.

A crucifix bearer, ceremonial officials in black and white vestments and attendants in red velvet appeared and a profound silence descended on the crowd as Camillo Cardinal Caccia Dominioni, dean of the cardinal deacons, came to announce the name of the new Pope at 6:10 p. m. (11:07 p. m., Atlanta time).

As he advanced to the balcony railing, the commander of the papal gendarmes below called the Distinguished Career Of New Pontiff

By The Associated Press. March 2, 1876—Eugenio Pacelli born, the son of an Italian noble family.

1901—Ordained to the priesthood.

1912—Appointed papal under-secretary of state.

1917—Named papal nuncio at Munich.

1920—Appointed nuncio to new German republic, where he served nine years.

December, 1929—Created cardinal by Pope Pius XI.

February, 1930—Appointed papal secretary of state.

July, 1933—Negotiated concordat with Nazi Germany.

October—November, 1936—visited United States and was received by President Roosevelt.

February 10, 1939—Became Cardinal Caccia Dominioni, interim head of Catholic church, on death of Pope Pius XI.

March 2, 1939—Elected pope and assumed name of Pius XII.

order: "Present arms!" The dry slap of rifles being snapped to position echoed through the square.

Proclamation in Latin.

Cardinal Caccia Dominioni spoke into microphones which carried his voice to loudspeakers in the square and to the world by radio.

In Latin he proclaimed: "Annuntio vobis gaudium magnum: Habemus Papam—Eminentissimum ac Reverendissimum Cardinalem Eugenum Pacelli, qui sibi nomen imposuit Pio Duodecimo."

"I give you tidings of great joy: We have a Pope—the Most Eminent and Reverend Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, who has taken upon himself the name of Pius XII."

A great cheer went up when he had got as far as "Eugenium"—for the crowd then knew the identity of the new pontiff—and the cardinal was forced to wait before completing the announcement.

"Providence could not have given the church a better Pope," he said in conclusion, after noting that the election took place on the new Pope's birthday and leading the multitude in a Te Deum.

Pope Comes Into View. The cardinal and attendants then withdrew.

Guards appeared; then the crucifix bearer and acolytes came upon the balcony again.

Suddenly Pius XII came into view, on his portable throne, surrounded by various cardinals.

The papal guards did military honors, first on the balcony and then from below.

As His Holiness came forward to the balcony, the crowd gave him a tremendous ovation and handkerchiefs and hats were waved from thousands of hands.

His white vestments and tiara gleamed in the falling light. He allowed the ovation to continue briefly and then he lifted his right hand in signal for the benediction.

Many knelt in the silent square and others crossed themselves as the Pope began to speak in Latin: "Blessed be the name of the Lord," he said.

"From now and henceforth for ever more," tens of thousands of voices responded.

"Our help is in the name of the Lord," he continued.

"Who made heaven and earth," came the response.

Sign of the Cross. He raised his right hand and three times made the sign of the cross—turning as he did so to the four corners of the earth.

"May the blessing of God Almighty, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descend upon you and remain there always," he concluded.

"Amen," came the response.

The throne was moved slowly backward and the white figure, a hand raised in blessing, retired.

Slowly the crowd began to disperse.

After the public benediction, he went to the Sistine chapel for the second obedience of the cardinals.

For this the pontiff was dressed in episcopal raiment, alb, stole, white cape and mitre.

Two cardinal deacons accompanied him to the altar.

Then, as he sat in his throne chair, the cardinals approached in the order of their rank and kissed his foot and then his hand.

NEW POPE IS FIRST TO USE GYMNASIUM

Pius XII Comes From Long-Lived Family; Is Frail But of Sturdy Health.

VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(P)—The new Pope, though of frail form, enjoys good health and is of the thin, ascetic type that usually lives long.

His paternal grandfather, a high functionary of the Vatican, died at the age of 100 in 1902. His father, a Consistorial advocate, also lived to a ripe age.

The new Pontiff keeps in trim by regular exercise in a gymnasium in his apartments. Since it is virtually assured he will continue this practice he will be the first Pope to have a modern gymnasium.

The twentieth century, however, has a very small chance of equaling the record of the nineteenth century for the smallest number of popes in history.

Only six popes governed the church in the 18th century, whereas the new Pope is already the fifth for this century.

Pius IX, longest reigning pope in history, 1846 to 1878, and Leo XIII, second longest reigning pope in history, 1878 to 1903, were both 18th century pontiffs.

The 15th century had nine popes, the 16th and 17th had 11 and the 18th and 19th had more than 20 popes each.

CLIPPER DELAYED.

BALTIMORE, March 2.—(P)—Departure of the Yankee clipper for Washington was postponed today until 7 a. m. tomorrow because of a "slight propeller adjustment" which Pan-American officials said was being made.

DOUGHERTY HAILS ELECTION OF PACELLI

Event Will Give Universal Satisfaction, Declares American Cardinal.

VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(P)—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, hailed the election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli today as an event which would give "universal satisfaction."

After leaving the conclave for his hotel in Rome, Cardinal Dougherty issued the following statement:

"The election of His Eminence, Cardinal Pacelli, as Pope has not been a surprise. In fact it was generally expected. From his early manhood he had been an outstanding ecclesiastic and long ago it was predicted he would become Pope of this church."

"In physical appearance he is tall and ascetic. In disposition he is gentle and most kindly. He has a combination of gifts, among them that of languages."

"Besides Latin and Italian, he speaks fluently French, Spanish, Portuguese and especially German in which he was accustomed to preach during his stay in Germany as apostolic nuncio. Even the Germans were surprised at his eloquence in their language."

"Pius XI chose him as secretary of state, perhaps the most difficult position in the church after the papacy itself, and also selected him for various important missions. He sent him as his legate to the International Eucharistic congresses at Buenos Aires and Budapest, and frequently sent him to represent him at Lourdes and Lieux on important occasions."

"No doubt it will interest Americans to learn that when a young man, Monsignor Pacelli was appointed to the chair of canon law at Catholic University of Washington and accepted that position, but was prevented from fulfilling it by the Holy See which desired him on this side of the ocean because of what it had in store for him."

"It is no exaggeration to say that his election as Pope will give universal satisfaction even to those outside the pale of the church. It has made Catholics in Rome thrill with delight."

Pius XII To Bring New View to Vatican

Traveled and Diplomatic Pontiff Expected to Follow Predecessor Only in Fundamental Matters

VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(AP) A diplomat, linguist, humanitarian and canon lawyer, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, elevated today to the papacy, was expected by churchmen to follow the policies of his predecessor in fundamental matters but to bring a certain freshness and more modern views to the church.

Having spent time in both North and South America, he probably has the best knowledge of those continents of any Pope.

Since he used airplanes frequently as cardinal, many believed the possibility was not excluded that he might do so as Pope, thus becoming the first flying pontiff.

The United States knows him well because of the busy month he spent there in October and November, 1938, when he flew from the Atlantic to the Pacific and visited 12 of the 16 American ecclesiastical provinces.

Lunches With Roosevelt. He received honorary degrees from a large group of American universities and colleges, including Notre Dame and Fordham, visited all four American cardinals, O'Connell, Dougherty, Hayes and Mundelein, and had luncheon with President Roosevelt.

When he returned to Vatican City he gave L'Osservatore Romano a three and a half column interview praising the religious development and initiative in the United States.

Cardinal Pacelli's abilities which made him available for the papacy are many.

There was his long career as a diplomat. Soon after his ordination in February, 1901, he was given a minor office in the papal secretariat of state by Pope Leo XIII. In 1912 he was named undersecretary of state. This post he held until 1921.

In April, 1917, in the midst of the World War, he was sent to fill the place of the papal nuncio at Munich, Bavaria, who had just died.

After the war he remained in Germany and went through the trying days of the post-war reconstruction. In 1919 he showed great courage when a group of Spartacists, with revolvers aimed, rushed into the nunciature. Pacelli, wearing the purple of a bishop, met the revolutionists with quiet courage, unflinchingly told them they were in an embassy, privileged by international agreement and warned them against harming a foreign diplomat. The Spartacists, abashed, left him in peace.

Esteem of Germans. In these years Pacelli won the esteem and gratitude of the Germans for the work he did on behalf of the people in the Ruhr.

At that time, too, he negotiated a concordat between the Holy See and Bavaria.

In 1920 Pope Benedict XV named him nuncio to the new German republic, but he did not leave Munich until 1924 to take up his residence in Berlin.

At Berlin Pacelli became the dean of the diplomatic corps because of the fact that he was the first envoy plenipotentiary accredited to the new German republic. He won a name for himself because of his tact and knowledge of languages.

It was in Germany at this time that he first began to make such frequent use of the airplane. Whenever there was a Catholic convention in any part of Germany he was always sure to be there, and to get there by plane.

The climax of his work in Germany was the negotiation and signing of a concordat between the Holy See and Prussia, July 14, 1929.

Pope Pius XI called him back to Rome after 12 years in Germany and awarded him the red hat December, 1929. February 7, 1930, the Pope named him papal secretary of state.

As papal secretary of state Pacelli had a busy career. He negotiated accords with many nations, including a new one with Germany and another with Austria. His problems were tremendous, and all called for the rarest of diplomacy.

He had to deal with the rise of Hitler's Nazis and their coldness toward the Catholic church in Germany and the desire of some of them to develop a national church based on the old German worship of Thor. Although relations between the Vatican and Germany were many times at the breaking point, Cardinal Pacelli always managed to ease things over.

He had to face repeated revolution in Spain and finally the civil war.

He had innumerable troubles in Mexico and with Soviet Russia.

Since a Pope must keep in close contact with all the principal nations of the world and know international politics, Pacelli's long experience in papal diplomacy should prove an invaluable asset.

Before his election, Pacelli liked to travel, his choice means of transport being airplanes and boats. A visit of the Pope to the United States would not be out of the question.

Traveling Pope. A prelate very close to the Vatican recently said that if Pacelli were chosen Pope every country in Europe will see him sooner or later. He said that the papacy would never have had an occupant who traveled more.

The new Pope comes of an Italian noble family which always maintained friendly relations with the Vatican. His father was dean of the secular consistory and advocate. His brother, Francesco, now dead, represented the Vatican as its attorney in the negotiations with Mussolini's government which resulted in the Lateran treaty of 1929, ending the Roman question that began in 1870.

Born March 2, 1876, in Rome, Pacelli studied theology in Rome. Later he taught diplomacy.

He occupied a number of high posts in the church. He was high priest of St. Peter's Cathedral, prefect of the congregation for extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs, and chancellor of the Pontifical Institute of Christian Archaeology. He is also protector of the Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, Buenos Aires, and of the Sisters of St. Mary of the Third Order of St. Francis, St. Louis, Mo.

He has written extensively on church topics.

Naming of Hayes Successor One of Pontiff's Duties

VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(AP) One of the first duties of Pope Pius XII will be to appoint an archbishop of New York, a seat vacated by the death of Patrick Cardinal Hayes.

Another will be the calling of his first consistory to fill some, at least, of the vacancies in the college of cardinals, one of which resulted from Cardinal Hayes' death.

Appointment of the new archbishop was considered imminent at the time Pius XI died and, therefore, is expected to receive the attention of the new pontiff soon. Cardinal Hayes died September 4, 1938.

Vatican circles considered Monsignor Stephen Donahue, auxiliary bishop of New York, an outstanding candidate for the post. Monsignor Donahue has been in charge of the New York diocese since Cardinal Hayes' death.

Others mentioned are Monsignor Edward Mooney, archbishop of Detroit; Monsignor Francis J. Spellman, auxiliary archbishop of Boston, and Monsignor John T. McNicholas, archbishop of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The choice lies entirely with the Pope.

The naming of two new cardinals for the United States, instead of merely the one that would restore the list to four, is considered a strong possibility.

The three American cardinals, O'Connell, Dougherty and Mundelein, attending the conclave for the first time as a full group, would have an excellent opportunity to inform the new pontiff of the feeling of many Catholics in America that he should give them wider representation in the college.

The last American, George Cardinal Mundelein, was elevated to the purple on March 24, 1924. Since then United States Catholics have increased by some 3,000,000 to 21,500,000.

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 2.—Building permits totaling more than $10,000 were issued here in January. Contractors, however, report they expect a much larger volume of building for the remainder of the spring months.

PACELLI ELECTION PLEASING TO HULL

Governmental and Religious Quarters in U. S. Express Satisfaction.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP) The selection of the papal secretary of state as the new pontiff of the Catholic church brought expressions of satisfaction today from governmental and religious quarters here.

Secretary of State Hull told a press conference that it was a matter of satisfaction and pleasure to learn of the selection of Cardinal Pacelli.

High officials of the Catholic church in this country agreed that no previous Pope had such wide acquaintance with affairs and life in the United States.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate, referred to the new Pope's visit to the United States in the fall of 1938, when he was a cardinal, and said:

"Pius XII was enthusiastic about what he saw in this country and commented frequently on the great vitality of this nation."

The apostolic delegate recalled that the new pontiff "was so eager to learn personally as much as possible about the American people during the few weeks that he remained here that his travels to every section of the United States were done for the most part by airplane."

The State Department will receive formal notification soon of the election of the new Pope, if custom is followed. Usually, the notification comes either through a communication from the College of Cardinals to the American embassy in Rome or through the apostolic delegate in Washington.

Pius XII is the first Pope ever to have visited the United States, said the Right Rev. Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare conference, adding that his selection was "most gratifying to us in the United States in view of his personal knowledge of our country."

BRITAIN, FRANCE ACCLAIM PIOUS XII

'Extreme Annoyance' Expected To Be Expressed by Germany.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. Election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli as Pope Pius XII was applauded last night in Great Britain and France, where it was regarded as a severe blow to the dictatorships while Nazi Germany described him as "a representative of a morbid generation of dying upper bourgeoisie."

"The political enemy of National-Socialist Germany," was the description, applied to the new Pontiff in Berlin in a brochure issued before the election of Pacelli by the Nazi party.

"Pacelli is responsible for the gruff attitude of the Vatican toward the Rome-Berlin axis. He hopes to save his political system through dependence upon the western democracies."

The National Zeitung of Essen, organ of Field Marshal Goering, urged Pius XII to turn a deaf ear to "The darkest whispers and rumors to which his predecessor undoubtedly succumbed" and to lead the world toward peace.

Hopeful of Reign. The newspaper of Goering was the first to comment belatedly on the election of Pacelli. It spoke hopefully of the prospects of his reign, saying that "it is certain that the new pontiff is sufficiently clever and intelligent to form for himself the most decided judgments about affairs."

The reception given in Germany to the choice of the Sacred College of Cardinals, indicating continued Vatican-Nazi tension and difficulties, was in sharp contrast to the exuberant reaction in Britain, France and other European countries.

In Rome King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Benito Mussolini tonight sent Pius XII congratulatory telegrams upon his election. Mr. Duce expressed the "reverent homage" of himself and the Fascist government and stressed the "to your holiness, Pius XII. The Italian people participates in the joy of the Catholic world for the election of your holiness to the supreme pontificate. I beg your holiness to accept the Fascist government's and my personal reverent homage, Mussolini."

"Punch in the Nose." George Bernard Shaw, British author, in London, succinctly described Cardinal Pacelli's election as "a punch in the nose for the totalitarians."

Viscount Cecil, president of the League of Nations Union, said the choice could be interpreted as a victory for the "liberal side" of the conclave of cardinals, which is anti-totalitarian.

In Catholic France there was widespread rejoicing over the election of Cardinal Pacelli and the French government, which always found the new Pope's foreign policies while secretary of state in close alignment with the so-called democratic club, was particularly pleased.

Most of France's 30,000,000 Catholics were convinced that the six French cardinals participating in the conclave had cast their votes for Cardinal Pacelli on all three ballots.

In Berlin German government officials made immediate comment on the election but Nazi leaders indicated that the Reich's "extreme annoyance" probably would be expressed.

Since the death of Pope Pius XI on February 10 the controlled Nazi press has made it clear that Germany wished to see a "non-political Pope" placed upon the throne of St. Peter's.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TO W. N. CONYERS

Funeral services for William Newton (Red) Conyers, well-known Atlanta businessman and a colonel on the staff of Governor Rivers, who died Wednesday at his home, were conducted yesterday at Peachtree chapel.

Dr. Louis D. Newton officiated and burial was in the Cartersville cemetery under direction of Brandon-Bond-Condon. The Rev. Guy Atkinson officiated at brief services at the graveside.

HOUSE AMENDS SALES TAX BILL

man's question," said Key. "I did vote against the income tax measure which I felt would penalize industry and drive wealth from the state. When you hurt industry, whom do you hurt essentially? The wage-earner. That was my position."

The exchange referred to the house's passage of a bill to disallow deduction of federal income tax payments in computing net incomes for taxation by the state. Proponents of this measure asserted it would mean more than $1,000,000 more revenue annually from the state. The bill would become effective as of January 1 this year. It was transmitted immediately to the senate, barring a move to reconsider.

"Test" of Sales Bill. The motion to table the sales tax bill and all substitutes and amendments, including a luxury tax measure to levy a 20 per cent tax on soft drinks, amusement admissions and the like, was made by Representative W. H. Jones, of Brantley, an independent. Jones voted against his own motion.

Jones explained that his only aim in making the motion was to determine something of the strength the sales tax proposal held. The vote against tabling was 141 to 41.

Many legislators said they did not consider this an accurate test because they believed many representatives who opposed the sales tax bill favored the luxury tax measure which would have been sent into cold storage along with it by tabling. They added that they felt others opposed to it preferred the direct and conclusive method of action in a final vote rather than through a tabling motion. A bill laid on the table like the appropriations bill earlier this week can be removed for renewed action by a majority vote.

3 Per Cent Tax. The sales tax bill would levy a 3 per cent tax on retail sales. Under the amendment this also would include rents charged by hotels, services furnished by utilities like electricity, gasoline, telephone and telegraph service and on bus, railroad and street car fares as well as on transportation of freight and baggage.

Representative Lanier asserted he believed the amendment would mean about $7,000,000 more than the original $11,000,000 annually that proponents of the bill hope to raise from it as a way to solve the problem of getting the $8,500,000 Governor Rivers estimates he needs to complete his little New Deal program.

Representative H. B. ("Hell Bent") Edwards, of Lowndes county, introduced the amendment affecting utilities, transportation companies and "all public service companies of every kind and description."

Proceeds from the sales tax measure would go on an equal basis to three sources, school teachers' salaries, the counties, and the Public Welfare Department for old-age pensions, dependent children and eleemosynary institutions.

The procedure on the bill will be for the house to perfect it section by section, then perfect the substitute luxury tax bill similarly and choose between the measures. If it accepts the sales tax bill the other measure automatically would be dropped. However, would place the luxury bill in position for acceptance or rejection.

Prison Bill Adversed. The house penitentiary committee adverse a measure to abolish the State Prison and Parole Board, while the senate penitentiary committee recommended passage of a bill to abolish the State Board of Penal Administration.

The vote on the income tax non-deduction bill was 111 to 37, and it followed sharply worded debate which took up a large part of the session.

Spokes of the measure estimated it would bring more than $1,000,000 into the treasury, but those opposed contended that such a bill would drive wealth and industry from the state.

One of those favoring the bill, Chairman Henderson Lanham, of the house ways and means committee, said that if it was not approved "it'll be hard to pass a sales tax. You cannot base a tax system on services, you must base it on the ability to pay."

Included among the members arguing against the measure were Representatives J. M. Simmons, of Decatur, and W. H. Lovett, of Laurens.

Railroad Measure. The house passed by a vote of 131 to 3 a bill which would allow railroads to operate freight delivery systems within a radius of five miles of the depots without the trucks being taxed as common carriers. Representative Jack Williams, of Ware, served notice he would seek reconsideration.

By a vote of 103 to 4 the house adopted a measure by Representative Pilcher, of Warren, to exempt from the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission trucks of 20,000 pounds or less capacity which haul agricultural products between markets, gins, homes, stores, etc. The present limit is 10,000 pounds.

Speaker Harris asked the house to complete action on tax measures by Tuesday at the latest so it might turn over to the senate Wednesday a state budget and measures to finance it.

Pointing out only two more weeks after this remain before adjournment, Harris asserted he did not wish to rush the house unduly, but that the time was growing short and speedy action was needed. He urged that every member attend and remain in his seat so the bills can be taken up and disposed of.

Several minor bills were introduced. One by Representative Terrell, of Hall, would allow local political subdivisions to levy taxes on motor carriers.

A bill by Representative Swindie, of Berrien, and others would permit the Highway Department to expend money on rural roads not on the state aid system if counties entered into a contract for their upkeep thereafter.

Another bill would permit the pensioning of constables at $30 a month after 40 years of consecutive service.

Movies To Show Advances in Surgery

Films Will Picture Drama of Operating Rooms at Post-Graduate Assembly of Southern Congress

Surgeons of the southeast next week will doff mask and gown, lay aside their instruments, forget to "scrub up" and take a "sailor's holiday" by going to the movies to learn something new about their own profession.

The "continuous performance" of films to be shown at the Biltmore hotel during the 10th anniversary post-graduate teaching assembly of the Southeastern Surgical Congress, March 6, 7 and 8, will be devoid of newsreels, comedies, sports shorts and music, and will be devoted strictly to surgery, its needs and its results.

Dr. Fred F. Rudder, chairman of the congress' scientific exhibits committee, announced yesterday a "program" of nearly 50 films has been arranged, each dealing with a human drama seldom seen by the general public but of daily recurrence in the operating room. Each will depict the principal steps in an operation, relate the case history of a hopeful patient, explain operating procedure, and recount the results obtained.

Plastic Surgery Films. Six of the films will deal with plastic surgery, three will be on larynx operations, including one on cancer of the larynx, and three will cover cardiac surgery. Others will include thyroid surgery (4), thoracic surgery (5), genito-urinary (2), gynecology (8) and general surgical subjects (16). Several will be in color and at least three will be in sound—newest contribution to technique in surgical teaching.

The films will show only the flashing instruments and hands at work. The owners of the films—will include the following well-known names in the profession: PLASTIC—Dr. C. R. Straatsma, New York city; Dr. William M. Adams, Memphis; Dr. T. C. Davidson and Dr. Fred F. Rudder, Atlanta; Dr. Neal Owens, New Orleans; Dr. Addison Brenizer, Charlotte, and Dr. Earl C. Padgett, Kansas City, Mo.

LARYNX—Dr. Edward A. Loopier, Baltimore; Dr. Russell Burt and Dr. William Armstrong, Atlanta; Dr. Gordon B. New, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and Dr. A. G. Fort and Dr. Lester A. Brown, Atlanta.

THYROID—Dr. Harold L. Foss, Danville, Pa., and Dr. Brenizer. CARDIAC—Dr. Harold Brunn, San Francisco.

Forty Exhibits. THORACIC—Dr. H. K. Tenney Jr., Madison, Wis.; Dr. Richard Overholt, Boston, and Dr. Alton Ochsner, New Orleans. GENITO-URINARY—Dr. Brenizer.

GYNCOLOGY—Dr. N. Sproat Heaney, Chicago; Dr. Paul Titus, Pittsburgh; Dr. John C. Irwin, Los Angeles; Dr. Max Cutler, Chicago; Dr. Eldon W. Tice, Los Angeles; Dr. Henry T. Burns, New York city; Dr. Cyrus W. Anderson, Denver, Col., and Dr. Dennis W. Crile, Chicago.

GENERAL—Dr. C. C. Howard, Glasgow, Ky.; Dr. Hugh H. Trout, Roanoke, Va.; Dr. Thomas E. Jones, Cleveland; Dr. Fred W. Rankin, Lexington, Ky., and Dr. William Linder, Brooklyn.

In addition to the movies, nearly 40 scientific and surgical exhibits have been arranged, several of them also including motion pictures on surgical subjects.

Among the most interesting of the exhibits will be one on automobile injuries to be presented co-operatively by Major Phil Brewster, of the State Department of Public Safety; Captain Douglas B. Kendrick, of Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.; Dr. E. S. Gurdjian, of Detroit, and the following Atlanta surgeons: Dr. Hugh Cochran, Dr. Edgar Finch, Dr. J. D. Martin, Dr. Ira Ferguson, Dr. Henry Poer, Dr. T. C. Davidson, Dr. Fred F. Rudder, Dr. T. P. Goodwyn, Dr. Walker Jernigan, Dr. Calvin Sanderson, Dr. Lawson Thornton, Dr. Martin Myers, Dr. Joe Boland, Dr. W. Paul Elkin, Dr. William G. Hamm, Dr. Earl Floyd and Dr. James L. Pittman.

Papers To Be Given. Another exhibit will be presented by the Junior League's Grady hospital thyroid committee—a pictorial presentation of internal diseases and conditions seen in a non-endemic area. Others will be shown by surgeons of note from throughout the country.

Seven general sessions of the congress' assembly will be held during which papers will be presented by men of recognized authority in surgery, not only in the southeast but from points throughout the United States and Canada. Three "dry" clinics also will be held on "Call-Blind" Syndromes, "Surgical Treatment of Essential Hypertension" and "The Goiter Heart." Frequent intermissions will be taken for review of the exhibits, and daily round-table discussions also are scheduled.

A full round of entertainment features has been planned, topped by the congress' annual banquet Tuesday night.

HOUSTON SPEEDING HOME WITH F. D. R. Expected to Dock in Charleston Today.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 2. (P)—The cruiser Houston, returning from the West Indies, was speeding by the Bahamas tonight as navy yard officers at Charleston, S. C., arranged for its arrival by 3 p. m. tomorrow. The President will arrive in Washington Saturday morning.

White House staff members who had maintained temporary headquarters in Coral Gables, Fla., for the two weeks the chief executive has been at sea could not give the exact location of the Houston since they were en route to Charleston and were out of touch with the vessel all day.

Atlantan Explains South's Case to Solons

statement by Representative Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, second ranking Democratic member of the committee, who said at the outset of the day's hearings: "The minds of all committee members are now made up, and I am sure we have no intention of doing anything about the matter."

Taking exception of the Bulwinkle statement, however, Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, leader of the house rate revision bloc, declared later his group will press their demands before the committee and failing there will carry the fight to the floor of both chambers.

Promises Fight. "I still think we have a good chance to work out some legislation that will direct the ICC to gradually eliminate existing differentials," the Georgia congressman said. "The fact that we have some 130 members in the freight rate bloc, coming from 26 states, is evidence enough of our ability to wage a relentless fight. It should be borne in mind also that even though we fail to command a majority in the house the 26 states represented in the bloc have 52 members of the senate, which is a clear majority of that body."

"I am not surprised at the attitude of Representative Bulwinkle," Ramspeck continued. "It is generally known that he serves a district in North Carolina (the Charlotte district) that has secured beneficial rate concessions from the ICC not shared by other sections of the south generally."

Nevertheless, the Bulwinkle statement seemed to have some effect on opposition witnesses, who, thus assured, curtailed their testimony afterward and confined themselves to a brief outline of dissent against the proposed legislation. Further testimony of opponents will be heard tomorrow, at which time the senate interstate commerce subcommittee will resume its hearings on the same subject.

Admits Opposition. Bulwinkle admitted he was not in sympathy with the Ramspeck or other senate bills, all of which ask parity in rates for nonofficial territory, and insisted that under existing law the ICC has sufficient power to work out the matter of fair rate fixing.

The first witness, Willard McIntyre, deputy attorney general of Michigan, speaking on behalf of the state's governor and legislature, said enactment of any of the bills would be detrimental to labor, industry and agriculture of Michigan, and would force its industries to close or move out of the state.

Some surprise was registered by both committee members and spectators when A. G. T. Moore, traffic manager of the Southern Pine Association, with headquarters in New Orleans, took the stand to observe that all pending bills "are just a lot of cockleburrs under our tails."

"There can be no yardstick for fixing mileage rates," he observed. "It is true we want a readjustment of rates on southern pine but we want the ICC and not congress to fix them."

Another witness, Harry C. Ames, representative of the New England Freight Rate Commission, told the committee that congress had neither the time nor the ability to fix rates.

"Smoke Screen" Set Up. After six witnesses had stressed the complexity of rate making, Representative Boren, of Oklahoma, an ally of the south in its fight for revision of rates, strongly intimated that the plea of complexity was nothing more than a smoke screen to confuse the real issue.

H. A. Hoppeler, of Indianapolis, representing Indiana's Governor, and the Cleveland, Detroit, Flint and Toledo Chambers of Commerce and Transportation Boards, read telegrams of protest from Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, and his own state.

Assuring the committee he had been engaged in transportation and traffic work for 30 years he gave two fundamental reasons why the Ramspeck or similar bills should not be enacted.

"They are not fair or equitable," he said, "and they would establish rates harmful to every section of the country including the south. The present ICC act does not favor discrimination in rates. We want no advantage over any territory but I might add parenthetically that producers in Georgia may ship into New York by water cheaper than we can. This is water discrimination."

"I urge this congress to leave the matter of rates in the very efficient hands of the ICC because of the technicalities involved."

"Railroads in official territory have been more prosperous than roads in other territories which show that shippers are not being preferred over those in non-official territory."

Northern Increases. "In fact, rates in official territory have increased some 90 per cent since 1916, while rates in the south have only shown an increase of 40 per cent."

Hoppeler predicted that if the examiners report in the recent case of the state of Alabama vs. the New York Central railroad is sustained by the full ICC, it probably would be taken to the United States supreme court.

"The people whom I represent," he said, "are certainly on the wrong end of this case."

Hoppeler, like other witnesses today, said congress should not even go so far as to pass a resolution directing the ICC to do anything in the premises. The Indianapolis then claimed that Corpus Christi, Texas, could ship grapefruit to the Indianapolis market cheaper than Indianapolis producers could ship to Corpus Christi, assuming that they had any grapefruit to ship.

Representative Halleck, of Indiana, a Republican member of the committee, charged that most roads in the south and southeast are bankrupt, while roads in official territory "are not doing so badly."

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(P)—The senate approved today a partial conference report on the $1,898,000,000 independent offices bill.

FOSTER MEMORIAL WORK COMPLETED

Shaft on Suwanee River Improved, Beautified.

Improvement and beautification of the Stephen Collins Foster memorial shaft at Fargo, on the banks of the famous Suwanee river, which Foster immortalized in song, has been completed under the direction of Charles J. Haden, Atlanta financier and businessman, who donated the memorial 11 years ago.

The shaft bears the inscription: "Erected in Memory of Stephen Collins Foster, at the Source of the Stream Which He Made Immortal in Song, 'Suwanee River.'"

Around it has been constructed an attractive iron fence.

PHILIPPINE PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(P)—Joaquin M. Elizalde, Philippine resident commissioner, said today President Manuel Quezon had protested to President Roosevelt a proposed increase excise tax on vegetable oil imports.

HIGH COURT BLOW AT SIT-DOWNERS BACKED BY PUBLIC

Two-Thirds of Lower Income Groups Oppose Such Labor Tactics, Dr. Gallup's Survey Shows.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The blow struck at sit-down strikes by the supreme court early this week is closely in line with American public sentiment.

Surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion in the last two years show that sit-downs were rejected by the court of public opinion many months before the supreme court had a chance to act, that there has been a rising trend of public resentment against the sit-down technique, and that opposition is not confined to the higher income groups but is also strong even among the working classes.

These facts are revealed in surveys on the issue: Do you think sit-down strikes should be made illegal in your state? This question was first put to voters in March, 1937, and again last month before the supreme court handed down its decision.

The vote on the two occasions was as follows:

March, 1937	Yes	No
Today	67%	33%
Today	75%	25%

While opposition has been strongest in the upper income group, which votes 85 per cent against sit-downs, the studies find that more than two-thirds of voters in the middle and lower income levels, which include the bulk of the working class, are also opposed.

The chief reason for this opposition, as expressed in thousands of comments made by voters, is that it is "unlawful to seize possession of private property." Many voters also feel that sit-down strikes are undesirable because "they give labor unions a black eye," while others say they are against the principle of force in labor disputes, believing that such disputes are better settled by arbitration.

Political sympathies appear to have little influence on a voter's attitude toward sit-downs. Both Democrats and Republicans are against the technique by more than 7 to 3.

The most important sit-down strike in recent years was in Detroit and several other Michigan industrial towns in the spring of 1937. Public resentment in Michigan is said to have cost Governor Frank Murphy his seat. Today's survey finds that the strongest opposition to sit-downs comes from the east central area composed of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. The next highest vote of opposition is in the midwest farm belt, where earlier Institute studies have shown militant labor unions unpopular with the farmers.

Should Sit-Downs Be Illegal?

	Yes	No
New England	68%	32%
Middle Atlantic	76%	24%
East Central	80%	20%
West Central	79%	21%
South	72%	28%
Far West	67%	33%

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 3, 1939.

THE ROAD TO PROSPERITY

It has long been contended that the durable goods industries must return to their proper position in the economic picture before the depression would show indications of being definitely over. For this reason, presumably, one barrier after another gradually has been removed by Washington to encourage plant expansion and modernization. Industry has long been hesitant, in the face of the threat of federal encroachment, to enter upon expansion programs. The natural tendency was to retrench—not expand.

By durable goods, of course, was meant machinery and other utilitarian equipment used in the production of things in general. The term applies to public utility equipment, particularly, since the production of such equipment would start factory and mining machinery rolling right down to the nation's industrial foundations. All the machinery starts running when the basic machinery begins to move.

The recent assurance by the President of the United States that no new "TVA" projects are contemplated by the administration should tend to restore confidence to the public utilities. It is understood billions of dollars must be spent on new equipment to put the utility business in a position to meet the demands which would be made upon it with returning national prosperity. The quicker, therefore, the investment is made the sooner the demand will come.

The steel industry, composed of some 275 separate companies, has been a steady spender for modernization. In 1935, it was $140,000,000, in 1936 $216,000,000, in 1937 $320,000,000 and so on. Approximately $1,000,000,000 has been invested in new equipment since 1934. It would have been double this figure, possibly more, if unfilled orders for steel had been nearer normal.

It is difficult to get around the argument that the investment of this huge amount in modernization had much to do with the output of steel during the period. What would have happened to production had the steel companies been content to operate with the equipment on hand? Surely they could have filled the orders—a fraction of their capacity—without new equipment. But would these orders during the period have been as great without the expenditure of the $1,000,000,000 in durable goods?

If half the needed new industrial equipment for full national prosperity were contracted for, the potentiality would, in all probability, soon turn to reality. Could the public utilities, the railroads, or any basic American industry, meet a sudden demand to double their services?

The potentiality is there. The very preparation for it would go a long way toward producing the business which would make it real.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE

Few semi-official activities have been created that hold greater promise of worth-while achievement than the new Fulton County Planning Commission. With a personnel including some of the most capable citizens of the county, men with experience and vision both adapted to the task before them, the commission should so shape the future of Fulton that the benefits of its work will be enjoyed for many generations yet to come.

To advise in the proper laying out of the county, to direct the locating of residential sections, business areas, industrial centers and recreation spots is a responsibility of highest degree. It is a duty which may, in the final outcome, be the deciding factor as to the future greatness or the future disintegration of this unit of Georgia of which Atlantans and the county residents alike are proud today.

That immediate pride is largely based upon the potentialities for the future, as seen by all men and women. It is the task of the planning commission to justify that prophetic pride and to make real the dreams of those who see ahead.

To make of Fulton a county so beautiful, so humanly desirable as a place of residence, so attractive over all its roads and fields and wooded lands that it becomes a synonym of inspired planning, is the hope of the commission. With the co-operation of all citizens and with the sympathetic understanding of governmental officials, there is no reason why there should be any limitation on the good that may be done.

There are, today, in all parts of the world, existing examples that both warn and inspire emulation. There are many communities which grew up helter-skelter, without thought for the morrow. They may serve as the horrible examples. On the other hand, there are magnificent cities and adjacent areas, planned in their early days of growth, which today may serve as models to be adapted to local conditions and which can inspire equally fine results here.

IN THE CAUSE OF HUMANITY

Announcement that the Georgia Baptist hospital will launch a campaign to raise $300,000 for the building of an addition, will be received with glad response all over Georgia. The campaign is to start on Sunday, May 7, which is "hospital day," and Baptists churches all over the state will lead in the search for funds.

It is certain, however, that Baptists of the state will not be allowed, by people of other denominations, or of no church affiliation at all, to keep the privilege of contributing to this fund to themselves alone. For there are too many Georgians who know too well the magnificent services of this hospital to all sorts and conditions of patients, regardless of church label, to permit them to forego the pleasure of helping such a cause.

Georgia Baptist hospital is performing a service to the cause of humanity that is not excelled by any institution in the country. No one knows, outside of the hospital's own officials and directors, how many patients have been admitted there, and given the finest of attention and treatment, who have not been financially able to pay. The proportion of charity patients is large. And it would be larger if the hospital was better financed. For they limit their services only by their ability to give.

The cancer clinic at this hospital is one of the most powerful and effective weapons available in the state's efforts to check the ravages of this disease.

There is urgent need for the addition proposed. And it is certain, once that need is known, there will be an outpouring of contributions to the fund sought, that will come from the grateful and appreciative hearts of the tens of thousands of Georgians who know what the Georgia Baptist hospital is doing and what it means to suffering humanity in this state.

A POLITICAL DIRECTORY

A booklet which should be in possession of every citizen of Atlanta and Fulton county is the 1939 Political Directory, published by the Atlanta League of Women Voters. It is the February issue of the league's periodical, "Facts."

In this directory may be found the names of all officials, city, county, state and federal, who represent this area and district. The terms of office are listed, together with the salary each, post carries. There is other important information as to primary rules, requirements of voters and other pertinent facts.

Good citizenship requires of every man or woman that they take active interest in the affairs of their community and their nation. An informed electorate is the very foundation of a workable democracy. Without knowledge of government, to some degree at least, on the part of every voter, there can be no hope of genuine popular control of the people's affairs. The professional politician and the office-holding grafter find their most lush field in that community where the voters know least, and care least, of their government and their representatives.

The proportion of Atlantans who do not know even the names of the men and women who fill the important offices in their various governments is startling and shameful. A great step toward governmental reform and increased efficiency would be made if this Political Directory could be studied and kept, for future reference, by every citizen of Fulton county. Fortunately, such possession depends only upon the initiative of the individual. Anyone may secure a copy by contacting the League headquarters, at 408 Forsyth building, Atlanta.

A set of rules to guide them in international play is handed the tennis stars of Italy. Naturally, any game going to deuce would be counted for whoozles.

An imaginary war rages through the Caribbean and adjacent waters, and any hour now Spain will be in the grip of the imaginary peace.

Maybe it isn't the old songs as songs that pluck at the heart strings, but the age they recall—as of before August, 1914.

Editorial of the Day

SOME DAY, SOMEHOW

(From the Charlotte News)

A queer trustfulness has come over the money world, mates. Even those marvelously astute creatures, the hard-headed businessmen, seem to have been affected by it. All these deplore, as a matter of course and upbringing, the New Deal's loose way with money and the public debt, and sometimes when they have eaten something that disagrees with them, they wring their hands and mournfully wonder what we are coming to. But when this same New Deal issues more bonds on top of all the multiplied billions it is making no effort to retire, who buys 'em? Right. The self-same hard-headed businessmen.

Something of this blithe trust in the ability of governments to pay their debts, no matter how sorry their current financial statements, seems to work in the case of Japanese bonds.

Those endless lines of soldiers, their supplies and ammunition, cost money beyond imagination, and the longer China holds out, the less money Japan will have for meeting its obligations.

But do Japanese bonds go down and down in the appraisal of the hard-headed businessmen who buy them? They do not.

They are selling at nearly twice their lows last year. All, you see, on the confident assumption that some day somehow, somebody will pay.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ASTONISHING SPECTACLE WASHINGTON, March 2.—The President's new policy of business appeasement has produced some astonishing results. None is more astonishing, however, than the spectacle of the Treasury, like another Abraham leading his little Isaac to the mountaintop, preparing to sacrifice its most famous policies on the sacred altar of "confidence." Even the soak-the-rich taxes of 1935 are in definite danger.

MYSTERY STORY The Treasury's novel enthusiasm for tax revision is founded in a mystery, which it may be well to clear up at the start. It's already been recorded how the President failed to warn any of his Treasury officials before announcing there would be "no new taxes" from the gang-plank of his cruise ship. Now it appears that, while surprised, the Treasury men were distinctly relieved.

The fact is that both they and the President had been warned by congressional leaders that new taxes might be demanded, but would not be voted at this session. The argument was that, with spending going full blast, there was no sense in approving painful additional levies which would only be used as an excuse for further inflation of the budget. The President heard the argument with equanimity, replying that he had not asked congress to balance the budget by taxation; that he had merely suggested new taxes would be needed to balance new classes of expenditure, and that he was content to let congress decide. Nevertheless, he did not tell his lieutenants at the Treasury not to present their money-raising program.

It's not quite clear how he moved from this position to the more positive one of not even asking for new taxes. There's a suspicion, however, that the idea popped into the presidential mind during a talk with Harry L. Hopkins about his Iowa speech. In any case, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., though puzzled, was pleased to play echo to his boss.

UNSOAKING THE RICH The Treasury has caught the new spirit so completely that the same men who were working on new taxes are currently studying how to pull old ones to pieces. Their most daring project is the modification of the soak-the-rich income taxes already mentioned. These were pushed through by the President, after a fearful fight, in an effort to steal some of Huey Long's share-the-wealth thunder. Treasury experts have long been privately convinced that in the upper brackets, where surtaxes were made to range from 50 to 75 per cent, the point of diminishing returns was passed. Now they hope they may persuade congress to soften the surtaxes, which would cost very little anyway.

Unsoaking the rich is not popular, even with the most conservative politicians, and congress may refuse to comply. Revisions of corporate taxes are a quite different story. The remnant of the undistributed profits tax, retained only to conserve New Deal amour-propre, may be allowed to go. And, much more important, the whole system of corporate taxation may be simplified by the removal of the capital stock and excess profits taxes. These are old levies, but hitherto the administration has cherished them. If they are abolished, a single, simple tax on corporate income will be left.

So much for the proposed changes. What is perhaps more surprising still is that, in studying the changes, the Treasury had admitted leading representatives of business to its councils. Hitherto, officials of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturers' Association and the like got short shrift at the Treasury. Now their approval of the new program is actually being courted by Undersecretary John W. Hanes.

UP TO THE PRESIDENT Anything can happen, with Harry L. Hopkins making speeches which sound like watered-down versions of Senator Josiah W. Bailey's "conservative manifesto" of last year. It remains to be seen, however, whether the Treasury's tax revision program really will happen. Presumably, the President has wired tentative approval from his cruise ship. But when he is asked to make the approval positive—to back-track on old, hard-fought-for policies—his reaction may be very different.

A City
Built Upon Sand.

And so, we heard, when very young, in a city built upon the sand. The name of the place was Birkdale, on the Lancashire coast, in England. The soil over the entire area was sand. Loose, whitish stuff at the surface and hard, moist, a foot or so down. Grand for growing Irish potatoes and for little boys and girls to play in, but not much use for anything else.

At the rear of our home there was a garden spot perhaps 50 by 30 feet in size. Near the house was a rectangular space of grass, achieved by the transplanting of the sod. The lower end of the garden was equally bisected by a pathway. On one side was the trock garden where we grew the aforementioned Irish potatoes. The other side was left to us, as a natural sand place where we could dig and build and play to heart's content.

We boys had an ambition to dig the deepest and narrowest holes in that wet sand. We'd sink a shaft so narrow there was barely room for one to stand at the bottom. That one would comfort himself until he could scrape it a little deeper and put the excavated sand in a bucket, which brother above would haul out at the end of a rope.

One afternoon, I recall, a younger brother was lying, face down, staring into one of these holes. In a spirit of thoughtless romping, I pushed him in. Head first. The sand caved in with him and got his eyes full. He was temporarily blinded and the punishment meted out to me was terrific! I deserved it, though.

A Pulpit
In the Sand.

When about 10 years old I decided on the career of a foreign missionary as my life work. To be honest, it was the lure of foreign places that decided me, rather than the evangelical inspiration. However, that decision, like everything else, found expression in the sand of the garden.

I dug and built a sand pulpit, with a childish idea of inviting stray passersby into our backyard so I could preach to them and thus secure practice and experience. But the first day after completion of the sand pulpit a particularly horrible sort of insect—black, with scores of legs and long pinchers—ran across the place. I shuddered, took the thing for a direct message that I was not supposed to be a preacher, in foreign land or anywhere else, and converted the pulpit into a fort, to be used in the family's perpetual warfare with the children next door.

The Cull
Potatoes.

From the potato patch we acquired our ammunition for that warfare over the neighbors' garden wall. The small potatoes, not large enough to be worth gathering, made splendid shot, to be hurled either by hand or from those complicated sling guns we made of board and heavy rubber bands.

There was, too, the time we built a canoe in the basement, for use on the shallow, swampy waters of the "sandhills," a mile or so from home across the "commons." Those sand dunes ran for miles, back of the smooth, sandy beach along the shore. In places the water lay in the lower spots for quite extensive areas.

We formed the framework of the canoe with bamboo. We oiled and painted and tarred canvas for the covering. Took weeks to stretch it over the frame. We covered the upper surface, all except a small opening for the occupant, making it something like an Eskimo kayak. We carried it to the sandhills, launched it carefully. My brother got in as we held it and grasped the home-made, double-bladed paddle. We released the canoe and gently pushed it from the bank.

It promptly turned over and we had quite a frantic time extricating brother before he drowned. The canoe, somehow, didn't have the right balance. We never did succeed in making it stay right side up, with an occupant. A lot of enthusiastic effort wasted.

But we always had lots of fun. The lizards and frogs and things we used to capture in those sandhills, and the sound of the skylarks, rising from the commons, dawn! You've missed something, if you've never heard them.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

A Trap NEW YORK, March 2.—If I were fixing a trap to set a trap at the New York World's Fair I would call it a police headquarters, stick a couple of police green lights out in front and try to get enojined by the mayor or the police commissioner. Maybe they would seize me for impersonating a police station, and if so I would get some loud, cheap lawyer to habeas-corpus me the joint. The publicity would put me over for one season, which would be enough.

We would have no cuff in our plant. We would be strictly sleeveless, and all the debts, both male and female, the broken-down society tramps of both sexes, the tablecloth authors, and playwrights, the men-about-town and the whole class of moochers of the night side of New York would be there.

We would announce that all customers would have to lift their weight, and that would scare them off, but just for a gag we would get up circulars of all the celebrities who are commonly mentioned in the columns dealing with saloon society, using their pictures wherever possible, and hang them on the walls of headquarters, offering a reward of $50 for proof that any one of them ever bought a drink. That would be a safe offer.

You Can Have Their kind of That Business trade brings publicity, to be sure, but what good is publicity if the free-lance shows the cash customers off into the alcoves or crowd them out entirely? I just don't see how some of our night side operators get by with the mooching that goes on today. The scion trade, the bum society trade and the celebrity trade all create a large bundle of clippings in the course of a year, but I am not Mr. Zero and you can have that business. I will take the tourist and the honest local yokel out of the ten bucks worth of Saturday night.

I would treat them all right, too. I wouldn't kid anybody. I would announce that our regular $1.50 dinner could probably be duplicated for from 35 to 50 cents in any one of a thousand bennies around town and admit that the margin was the jailer's graft or lug—a familiar practice in most American institutions of this kind. Food is really a nuisance in saloon type restaurants, and maybe a food would get down to the point of leaving a papier-mache sandwich at each plate and just painting a portrait of a slice of ham on each plate.

When people go out rejoicing they want gin, rum, rye, scotch and maybe a few layers of brandy for the small hours. We would keep some cheap champagne on hand, too, in case of couples out celebrating their fifteenth or twentieth wedding anniversaries with the in-laws and business customers.

Disrupting I took a friend into Jack White's one night, and when this friend ordered scrambled eggs he was the damndest rook in the kitchen that you ever did hear. The cook and the dishwasher poked their heads in to see what the guy looked like who was ordering food, and when the eggs finally came and the hubby was two jumps ahead of the waiter with a whole tray of bicard, bromo, bismuth and chewing gum.

I hear we have a place in town called the Fire House, but the police station would top that. For my part I have always wanted one of those comfortable police sergeant's chairs, canted somewhat back, with big side arms. We would have a desk inside the entrance, with a sergeant on duty in uniform to formally book the customers before turning them over to the turnkeys to be ushered to their cells. Naturally, they wouldn't have to give their square names, and, of course, we wouldn't search them unless that became necessary along toward closing time. I think it would be a wise idea to have bunks in the cells. But we would hire famous retired cops—like, say, Dick Enright or Ed Mulrooney, if they could be had—to be around in their old uniforms, and maybe some old cannons or petermen to be out, because they can get picked up for working where liquor is served.

I don't see why we couldn't call our joint police headquarters. After all, how many Lido Goldfarbs have there been in this country and Versailles and White Houses and palaces? What about the MacFadden-Deauville and the Dempsey-Vanderbilt?

What is so sacred about the name of police headquarters?

Talmudic Tales

PEARLS OF WISDOM ON VISITING THE SICK.

"One should neither weep nor mourn," says the Talmud, "in the presence of a sick person."

"One should not sit upon the bed of a sick person nor upon anything higher than the invalid."

"One should not visit any enemy in his sickness," says the Talmud. "nor comfort him in his mourning, that he may not think that you are rejoicing in his misfortune and come only to vex him."

"One should not visit a sick person during the first three hours of the day nor during the three closing hours of the day."

"One should visit neither a person who is suffering from abdominal trouble so as not to put him to shame, nor one who is troubled with his eyes, nor one who has a headache, nor any person who is very ill and to whom conversation is difficult; one should not visit any of the foregoing, but should call at the door of the house to make inquiries regarding his condition, and to ascertain if he be in need of anything."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

LEGISLATIVE STRATEGY? Yesterday, after a morning of furious and forensic debate, the house of representatives adopted an amendment which will cause the income-tax-paying citizens to pay a tax on the tax they pay to the federal government.

It was estimated this measure, which yet must pass the senate, will bring into the state treasury about $1,500,000. This was distributed unsuccessfully. None of the increase will be available for two years and is of no present help.

The small-county bloc held it, frankly and in closing debate by their representative, as a club over the head of the larger counties. The statement was made:

"You big-shot counties will be needing us for your legislation and we are just sitting back seeing what you will do on this measure."

Until then it had been assumed the vote might be close. It was not.

At any rate, the measure was approved and Georgians will now pay a tax upon a tax. It was all, according to some of the observers, a part of the strategy to assist a sales tax.

It now will be possible to work into a proposed sales tax exemptions in the amount of about $1,500,000. This would enable the legislature to exempt flour, bread, corn meal, syrup, molasses, and white meat.

This is, if it occurs, legislative confirmation of the fact that many Georgians subsist on the "three m's," meat, meal and molasses. It will, nevertheless, enable the legislator who opposed the sales tax, to excuse himself by saying he did not vote to tax the poor man's bread, meat and syrup.

There is, however, another possibility. The passage of the amendment gave foes of the sales tax an opportunity to amend the bill to death. That is one favorite method of killing a bill. There are those who argue there is no chance to reach a final vote today.

A number of the gentlemen have expressed a desire to go home over the week end with a copy of the bill.

SENTIMENT IS CHANGING

The state is broke. There is no money to pay teachers. The recent borrowing which gave the teachers their money to January 15. All anticipated revenue to July 1, 1939, has been spent.

There is no money with which to pay for the merry month of March. There just isn't any money. That fact hasn't soaked back home, but it is soaking.

There is no guarantee it will soak fast enough to bring about tax legislation at this session. If the legislature goes home and the schools and most functions of government cease, then there will be a public demand the legislature get itself back to the capitol and pass some sort of legislation to pay for the state's services.

There is one method open to the legislature to continue itself in session. There is pending before the house an impeachment bill. If the house should pass it, and then the senate pass it and bring it actually to trial, the legislature automatically would remain in session. This, while possible, is not anticipated.

If a sales tax is amended to death or filibustered to death, then the state will have been put in temporary bankruptcy and there will be another session—as soon as public opinion demands action.

The odds are, unless sentiment changes overnight—that most of the house wishes to return home and bend in an ear as the home folks talk before they vote.

They heard yesterday—by telegram and letter—from many organized groups. The schools wanted a sales tax. Many merchant groups did not.

"WE URGE YOU—"

It was rather amusing, from the side-lines, to see the telegrams arrive yesterday. It was not so amusing to the boys receiving them.

They were of two schools—those telegrams. This group wanted a sales tax. Another group didn't. There was the poor legislator. He had to choose. He represented both.

The present legislature is, as a whole, a high-class group. It includes many fine and sincere men. Yet they have little opportunity to study bills. There is, except for the lobbyists, little information available, and it often is unreliable. There was a speech yesterday, regarding other states and their income tax laws, which was very inaccurate. No one questioned it.

The legislature might do itself, and the legislators to come, a distinct favor if it created a board whose purpose it was not to recommend, but to study legislation, and report out on its possible and probable effects.

MEANWHILE, THE STATE WAITS

Meanwhile, the state waits. There is no money to pay teachers and other employees. The legislature wants to pay them. Yet it doesn't know how.

Those who argue forcefully that the program can be paid for without additional taxes, never offer a plan for so doing. Their statement is so much wishful thinking.

Meanwhile, there is no money. The income tax amendment won't bring in any money until 1941. That's the joker in it. There just isn't any money. And the outlook is somewhat dismal.

Are They Crying Wolf To Keep Us Organized or Have They Seen Wolf Tracks?

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

To be a success in troubled times, a President must be a shrewd politician. He must know how to use human nature. He must be able to guess which way the crowd is going and then get in front of it. He must have the knack of saying things that please people, and avoid saying things that displease.

Constitution Pioneers Recall Stagecoach Days

71 Contest Winners Enjoy 'Grand Old Time,' Relate Anecdotes of Paper's Early Youth.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

Men and women, who, through pages of The Constitution, have watched history pass in review down the years in a sweeping cascade of swiftly changing events, assembled here last night for a "grand old time."

And a "grand old time" they had, these pioneer and present readers of The Constitution, honored as winners in the contest to find old copies of The Constitution, showing its long career of service.

From all parts of the state they came, 71 strong, to be guests of honor at a dinner in the Wincoff hotel, where they talked of the days that are gone and told of how closely The Constitution was interwoven with their own lives.

After the dinner, the group attended a special preview of the motion picture, "Stagecoach," at Loew's Grand theater, where they saw not only the film, but a group of Indians from the Cherokee (N. C.) reservation, who journeyed here especially for the event.

First Issue Recalled.

The guests at the dinner were the readers who brought in the 71 oldest clippings of the newspaper, clippings which disclosed that three and sometimes four generations have preserved and valued sections, and even entire editions of the newspaper, from the first issue forward.

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, welcomed the guests on behalf of the newspaper. Miss Lillie May Robinson, magazine and feature editor, in charge of the contest, called on several of the "oldsters" present to speak.

There was Mrs. R. H. Baker, of Dahlonega, who came to Atlanta because she "wouldn't miss this affair, no matter what the weather."

Mrs. Baker related that her father was postmaster in Dahlonega when The Constitution published its first issue.

Constitution Twin.

"It arrived by stagecoach," she said, "and was eagerly read from front to back by practically every one who came to the post office. After the first issue copies were keenly anticipated."

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, secretary of the Atlanta Board of Film Review, spoke of herself as "a Constitution twin."

"I was born on the same day in June, 1868, that The Constitution first saw the light of day," she said.

Then she related an anecdote in connection with the clipping that won her an invitation to the dinner and preview. The clipping was

They saw history down the years through pages of The Constitution. The 71 readers who brought in the 71 oldest clippings came here for a good time—and had it last night, at a dinner and a preview showing of the motion picture, "Stagecoach." Left to right are Dr. W. W. Billingslea, of Atlanta, who earned his first money selling The Constitution; Ralph McGill, executive editor, who welcomed the guests; Mrs. Dora Albright Lee, who went to old Walker Street school with the late Clark Howell; (seated) Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, a brief announcement of her own wedding.

"My father did not want anything to appear in the paper," she said. "In those days, publicity—even of a wedding—was considered unlady-like. My father objected because he thought it was not genteel for me to break into print."

"At that time, Ed Bruffey was both sports editor and society editor of the paper. He persuaded my father to allow me to send in the story of my wedding. It was very brief, not more than two inches long."

Mrs. Richardson held up the clipping. Her listeners applauded.

Displays Scrapbook. Another speaker was W. H. Smith, of Jefferson, Ga. He said that the first vote he ever cast was for the late Clark Howell for the senate.

Miss Alberta Malone, of Atlanta, displayed a thick scrapbook of Constitution clippings, collected by her grandmother, who died in 1882.

"I have the distinction," said Miss Malone, "of being the first contest winner of The Constitution. I won't say when—but I was son, well-known Atlantan, born on the same day The Constitution published its first issue; Mrs. R. W. Baker, of Dahlonega, who recalled how eagerly the first paper was read in that community; (standing) W. H. Smith, of Jefferson, who cast his first vote when the late Clark Howell was a candidate for the senate, and Miss Alberta Malone, who won the first essay contest sponsored by the paper.

Indians met Georgia's "chief" yesterday. The full-blooded Cherokees came to town for the celebration in connection with The Constitution's old clipping contest. Left to right are Princess Morning Glory, Governor Rivers, Princess Lone Eagle and Chief Lone Eagle, who is shown shaking hands with the state's chief executive.

11 years old when I won an essay contest sponsored by the paper. The prize was a set of encyclopedias. I still have the books."

Dr. W. W. Billingslea, also of Atlanta, related that the "first money I ever earned" was through sales of The Constitution.

"I bought two papers for a nickel, sold them, and then bought four papers. I sold them, too, and then bought eight papers. I kept this up until I made a good amount of money that day. It was the first I ever earned."

Miss Dora Albright Lee, of Atlanta, told of her school days. "I went to the old Walker Street school," she said. "Clark Howell Sr. sat in a desk next to mine. We were in classrooms together for four years."

Stagecoach Days. As the guests talked informally, several persons recalled delivery of the paper by stagecoach.

The Cherokees arrived here at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a chartered bus that left North Carolina at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The party encountered snow in the Carolinas.

The Indians were under the guidance of Professor Kelly C. Underwood, of the Indian school on the reservation. Arriving here, the Indians traveled in style in the famous four-horse tallyho of Colonel Bob Lowry, a vehicle dating to 1850, and widely known for the fact that prominent Atlantans traveled in it.

The Indians—Chief Lone Eagle, Princess Lone Eagle, Princess Morning Glory, Sherman George, Mrs. Katy George, Abraham Walkingstick, Kimsey Squirrel, Emma Squirrel, Jonah Welsh, Sam Owle Jr., and little Mary Joe Washington—called on Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield, besides being introduced from the stage of the theater.

They lunched and dined at the S. & W. cafeteria, where, with their full regalia, they were the center of all eyes.

Last night they spent the night at a downtown hotel. Today they will visit the Cyclorama and then return home.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

Out of the clash of opposing opinions come progress and truth.

And out of the play of competition, socially unimpeded and confined, come the efforts, excellencies and equities that must belong to the capitalistic system if that system is to be saved as most of us desire. For the unimpeding and confining much governmental "interference" is required. But not the sort that amounts to dictation or absolute control. The interference that unimpedes competition is not at all the kind that eliminates competition and makes for state socialism. Those who complain against governmental interfering need to remember this difference and to know that never again will it be possible to operate any sizable business without some sort of social interference. The thing to look for and demand is not that there be no interfering but that it be of the right kind and by the right government.

Better than we could ever put the thing, Editor Julian Miller, of the Charlotte Observer, put it last week. Conservative in philosophy and opposed to the New Deal, he wrote, nevertheless against the notion that mere opposition is enough. And he pointed out the inevitability of "governmental interference."

"Our opinion has always been that this sort of social control by government should take the form of unimpeding rather than the form of absolute dictation," he wrote. "The Republicans, nor, for that matter, the anti-New Deal Democrats, can get nowhere by the simple utterance that they do not believe in government interference. The needed program is one that will state the case for the proper amount and kind of interference, or unimpeding, if you please, on the part of the government." We think we recognize in Editor Miller a brother, and we hope he won't mind. A brother in the school of Woodrow Wilson to which we and millions of others in the south have always belonged, the school we like to call the one of "unimpeded competition."

Congratulations to the amazing original southern business leader who made a speech on the south recently without once saying that the "south is not the nation's No. 1 problem, it is the nation's No. 1 opportunity and hope." If all the people who have said this since last September were laid end to end they would reach to rainbow's end and win the potted gold without work or reform. All sensible men understand now that the south is both a national problem and a national opportunity, and that some of the very things which make it the one makes it the other.

Alabama's State League of Young Democrats is discussing the matter of obtaining a "solid southern front" at the next Democratic national convention by having southern states send uninstructed delegates pledged only to bargain for southern interests. If they are really young these Young Democrats will be free enough of the southern quarrel over the New Deal to consider the "solid southern front" without reservations in favor of making it solidly New Deal or solidly anti-New Deal.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Dr. George Gallup's remarks during his recent visit in Georgia regarding the slow but steady change of public opinion with reference to our present effort to regulate the liquor traffic were not surprising, but will serve to confirm the widespread conviction that we are far from any satisfactory solution of the problem. The concern of the brewer's association is perhaps the most significant reaction yet noted in this national problem. They seem to fully recognize the fact that they are on the spot, and unless they can regulate the present trends of violation of the law itself and fulfill the many promises of a better day which repeal would usher in, that it will not be so very long until public opinion will again grow weary of the whole mess.

The Kingston Daily Freeman, New York, in a recent editorial, puts the whole question rather pointedly under the caption, "Broken Promises," going on to say: "Repealing legislation may have forgotten the promises they made when they were working to take the prohibition amendment out of the constitution, but the friends of temperance have not forgot. When the amendment was repealed, the national budget would be balanced and taxes lowered, that there would be no return to the saloon, that there would be no bootlegging, that there would be a reduction of crime, that drinking among young people would cease since the purveyors of legal liquor would be required to serve only adults, that unemployment would be solved, that disrespect for law would be halted, and that liquor regulations would be taken out of politics. That list of promises unfulfilled or hopes deferred needs no further comment." It may be too soon to pass final judgment on the "noble experiment" of a return to legalized liquor. Every fair-minded citizen will patiently and without prejudice wait for the friends of repeal to prove their case, upholding the law both by personal observance and sympathetic co-operation with those in authority, but meanwhile the public, according to Dr. Gallup and many other observers, is impressed with an apparent recurrence of conditions that obtained in the "good old days" of legalized liquor. I am firmly of the opinion that we need today, as ever, to carry forward a sustained program of education in which an appeal to the intelligence of our people shall be made regarding the unquestioned evils of intemperance.

INCOME TAX HELPS

Are you tearing your hair trying to figure out whether you can take a credit for helping to support grandma? Or the difference between an earned income credit, and a surtax net income? Or whether you got any taxable interest on government obligations? And did you have a net short-term gain from the sale or exchange of capital assets last year? And if not, why not? Is that loan you made to Brother John last year and which he hasn't paid, deductible as a bad debt? And how much gasoline taxes can you deduct? If you need help in figuring out your income tax return this year, our Service Bureau's bulletin on Federal Income Tax will probably solve many of these problems for you, and prevent you from cheating Uncle Sam or cheating yourself. Britain Boosts Air Fund 65 Per Cent

Announcement Follows Goering Boast; More Than Billion To Be Spent in Meeting Nazis.

LONDON, March 2.—(P)—Britain announced a 65 per cent boost in her air force appropriations today close on the heels of a declaration by Germany that the Nazis intended to maintain their advantage in warplanes.

Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood submitted estimates to the house of commons calling for the spending of the record sum of 220,626,700 pounds ($1,103,133,500) for the 1939-40 fiscal year starting April 1.

This huge outlay for the empire's air branch was disclosed only a day after Air Minister Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, of Germany, warned that the Reich was producing planes "in numbers and of quality which seemed unthinkable."

Sir Kingsley Wood's figures increased Britain's 1939-40 defense costs announced thus far to 535,426,381 pounds ($2,677,131,905) and the general budget to 1,070,022,462 pounds ($5,350,112,310). The general figures include an appropriation of $2,000,000,000 for civil services.

Another appropriation of approximately $1,000,000,000 for debt charges was expected to boost the general budget to around $6,250,000,000 when Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, introduces it next month.

The air minister indicated the air force personnel would be increased by 12,000 during 1939 to total of 118,000.

He also stressed a speed-up in the manufacture of planes, stating Britain's home first-line strength on March 31 would be 1,750 planes.

Commenting on the government's air defense preparations, the Marquess of Zetland, secretary of state for India, declared that Germany "will not find us prepared to meet her with our hands tied behind our backs while she holds a loaded pistol in her hand."

The government, meanwhile, outlined plans for evacuating civilians from crowded areas in war-time and for the hospitalization of wounded.

Another Tempting Menu of Movies Billed for Week by Theaters Here

Roxy Shows 'A Man to Remember'; Fox, 'St. Louis Blues'; Rialto, 'Let Us Live'; Paramount, 'Gunga Din,' and Capitol, 'Newsboys' Home.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor

For the second straight week a palatable movie menu has been dished up by Atlanta theater managers. Basing a prediction on its doors has decided to feature his screen attraction on a par with the Roxy's. The name of the picture is "A Man to Remember."

"A Man to Remember," out of R-K-O studios, is a Robert Sisk production which turned out to be what in movie-land parlance is known as a "sleeper." A "sleeper" is a picture which produced on a "program" or regular budget, stacks up at the boxoffice like a "biggie." Such pictures as "Three Wise Girls" and the Judge Hardy series turned out to be "sleepers."

"A Man to Remember" brings character actor Edward Ellis and young Anne Shirley into their own. Booked into a Washington theater for three days recently the picture started the capital by running five weeks.

The Roxyettes, however, will not yield their top spot without a kick. Their three new dances are said to be well up to their usual high standard. Their "Flame-Scar" dance is beautiful, their "Frankie Number" a hot tap routine, while their "Lunch-Box" number is a distinct novelty.

Radio singer Kay Hamilton, dancers Barr and Estes, Ward and Van and Don Francisco appear on the stage.

RIALTO PRESENTS "LET US LIVE"

A story simply told, yet powerful in human drama, is found in "Let Us Live," Columbia special production which opens at the Rialto theater this morning.

Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Sullivan co-star. The story is of youth condemned to die in the electric chair for a murder he did not commit. In the supporting cast are Ralph Bellamy, Alan Baxter, Stanley Ridges, Henry Kolker, Peter Lynn, etc. The director is John Brahm.

It is the story of a taxi driver and his sweetheart. Through mistaken identification, the driver and his pal are convicted in a cold-blooded murder, and sentenced to die. The girl strives desperately to prove their innocence and, with the aid of a great-hearted detective, eventually captures the real criminals.

"NEWSBOYS' HOME"

Turning the camera on a familiar American figure, the newsboy, the Capitol theater, starting Sunday, offers "Newsboys' Home," with Jackie Cooper in the starring role supported by Edmund Lowe, Wendy Barrie and the Little Tough Guys. The film will be offered in conjunction with a new vaudeville program.

Action of "Newsboys' Home" reveals Cooper as a small-town boy who comes to the city and seeks refuge in a newsboys' home that has been founded by a kindly publisher. How his heroism as a newsboy helps save his paper during a competition fight provides Jackie with an impressive role. He last appeared with Deanna Durbin in "That Certain Age."

New acts to be offered on the stage starting Sunday includes Griffith and H.L. Blackface comics; Straub and Lee, in "Musical Moments"; Crystal Cook, Chicago dancing star; Jimmy Fitzgerald, ventriloquist; DeBarrie's Cockatoos, featuring 16 trained birds, and others.

"Disbarred," starring Gail Patrick, Otto Kruger and Robert Preston, ends Saturday.

"SON OF FRANKENSTEIN"

Universal's new horror drama, "Son of Frankenstein," will have its preview at the Fox theater Saturday night at the regular preview starting at 11:30 o'clock. The cast includes Boris Karloff as the monster, Basil Rathbone as Baron von Frankenstein, and Bela Lugosi as Ygor, the broken-necked peasant who helped Von Frankenstein create the monster.

"PYGMALION" MOVES TO RHODES THEATER

"Pygmalion," film adaptation of Bernard Shaw's famous rib-tickling stage farce, comes to the Rhodes theater today. It had a record run at the Grand last week.

Starring Leslie Howard in the role of the phonetic professor who on a bet transforms a London guttersnipe into a duchess with hilarious consequences both for himself and the girl, Wendy Hiller.

PARAMOUNT SHOWS "GUNGA DIN"

Teamed together for the first time, Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. are seen as the three comrade sergeants whose adventures form the basis for the screen version of Rudyard Kipling's "Gunga Din," which has been held over by the Paramount theater.

The three stars portray a trio of British soldiers stationed at an army post in northern India. Their experiences while trying to quell an uprising among a band of religious fanatics, who commit wholesale murder according to religious rites, provide the action of the story.

Grant has recently achieved added popularity in such successful pictures as "Topper," "Holiday" and "The Awful Truth." McLaglen has scored in "The Lost Patrol," "The Devil's Party," "Battle of Broadway" and "Wee Willie Winkle." Fairbanks' most recent hits have been "The Rage of Paris," "Having Wonderful Time" and "Joy of Living."

Joan Fontaine has the leading feminine part and the title role is portrayed by Sam Jaffe. Other players are Eduardo Ciannelli, Montagu Love, Robert Coote and Abner Biberman.

BEAN KILLS BABY.

JONESBORO, Ark., March 2.—(UP)—An 18-month-old boy strangled to death when he swallowed a bean, a funeral home reported tonight. The child, J. D. Bradley, died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bailey, his parents, at Light, Ark.

STATE BETA CLUBS TO CONVENE HERE

Plan to Establish Alumni Council Is Sponsored by Amy Dodd.

High school students from all sections of Georgia will convene in Atlanta Friday and Saturday of next week for the state-wide convention of Georgia Beta Clubs, Thornton Savage, senior at Tech High school here and state Beta president, announced last night.

National society for secondary school honor students, the Beta Clubs will meet at the Henry Grady hotel to hear prominent Georgia educators speak. Opening address will be made by Professor E. D. Whisenant, superintendent of Baxley-High school.

Feature of the program will be presentation of a plan to establish an alumni council. Amy Dodd, former secretary of the Georgia Beta Clubs, and now a student at Georgia Evening College, will sponsor the plan.

Assisting Miss Dodd will be Savage, Mary Lightfoot Elean, of the Georgia Beta; and Professor George M. McCord, faculty advisor to the Tech High school Beta chapter.

Opening dinner will be held at 7:30 o'clock Friday night. A ball, at 9 o'clock Saturday night, will close the convention.

Speakers will include Dr. Ralph Ramsey, executive secretary of the Georgia Education Association; Dr. Paul Cousins, president of Shorter College, and Professor L. H. Battle, superintendent of the Douglas city schools.

Senate Warned of War Talk

Johnson Criticizes Roosevelt's Foreign Policy; 'America Wants No War,' Veteran Declares.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(P) Senator Johnson, Republican, California, leveled a forefinger at the senate today and warned it, as one who sat in that body in the trying days of 1917, that "insidious propaganda" is at work again to lead this nation into war.

Laying down a two-point foreign policy, which he said would have the thoroughgoing support of the public, he declared in a rising voice:

"First, America wants no war. America will fight to defend herself, but America wants no war."

"And secondly, America will have no entangling alliances; not only that, but America will have no commitments, no understandings or agreements by which we may be taken into the vortex of a war, or by which we might be taken into the disputes of Europe."

While the Californian, veteran of many a fight to keep America from what he terms "foreign involvements," was criticizing President Roosevelt's foreign policy as leading to "sanctions," which he called worse than war itself, and denouncing the recent sale of planes to France as surrounded with "secrecy and stealth," the hubbub over national defense and foreign policy continued elsewhere.

$500,000,000 Bill.

The house began consideration of the largest annual appropriation bill for the War Department ever to come before it in time of peace—nearly $500,000,000. And early in the debate, it received a warning from Representative Snyder, Democrat, Pennsylvania, in charge of the measure on the floor, that as soon as congress decides upon the scope of the proposed expansion of the air corps:

"Very sizeable (additional) amounts will be asked, to provide 'critical items' of equipment which would be needed in an emergency, such as anti-aircraft artillery, semi-automatic rifles, anti-tank guns, tanks, light and heavy artillery, ammunition and gas masks."

The ensuing discussion evoked from Representative Luther A. Johnson, Democrat, Texas, a member of the foreign affairs committee, a statement that for several years Great Britain had followed a policy of appeasing "these dictator nations" and that "every act of appeasement" had only made war the more imminent.

The house military affairs committee, meanwhile, studied the possibility of exchanging essential war materials with other nations, giving them supplies of which the United States has an abundance in return for raw materials in which it is deficient. It also took up the question of accepting such supplies in payment upon the war debts.

The senate had up for consideration a bill embodying most of the administration's rearmament program and proposing an expenditure of $338,000,000, largely for an expansion of the army air corps. Its eventual passage was a foregone conclusion, but for four days it has aroused a bitter debate on the nation's foreign policy.

Johnson read at length, at first approvingly and then with stern disclaim, from successive speeches of President Roosevelt on America's place in international relations.

State Lags in Tuberculosis Work, British Expert Declares on Visit

Dr. S. Vere Pearson Cites Florida Plan in Drawing Comparison.

Georgia has far to go to bring its tuberculosis control facilities on a par with those of Florida. This opinion was expressed by Dr. S. Vere Pearson, M. A., M. D., M. R. C. P., British tuberculosis specialist, in town yesterday on a brief inspection tour.

Dr. Pearson, chairman of the Joint Tuberculosis Council of Great Britain, arrived in Atlanta following a short stay in Orlando, Fla., where he visited the state tuberculosis sanatorium.

"Deeply Impressed,"

"I was deeply impressed with the facilities in Florida for the care and cure of tuberculosis," he declared. "Their plant and equipment is modern and up-to-date, and I believe their program for tuberculosis control is better than that in your state of Georgia."

"However," Dr. Pearson added, "it is my opinion that the methods in England are better than in this country."

This, he explained, was because activities of tuberculosis control agencies in Great Britain were better co-ordinated than in this country. Each unit, from the health officer to the Joint Control Council, functions jointly and comprises an integral whole, he said.

Dr. Pearson visited Georgia Tech and the Techwood housing development, and said he was highly impressed with the latter project.

Slum Work Expert.

He is no stranger to slum clearance and housing projects, being a member of the Council of the Garden, City and Town Planning Association of England. Dr. Pearson has made a close study of slum housing conditions in England and about three years ago wrote a book on the subject, "The Growth and Distribution of Population," which was widely read in London this month.

"I think the American authorities have done a splendid job in the Techwood and Atlanta University housing projects," Dr. Pearson said. "We in England have our problems regarding slum clearance, and from the developments here in Atlanta I have gleaned many practical ideas which I shall take back to England with me."

"They will be of great use to me in the slum clearance work at home, a subject in which I am deeply interested."

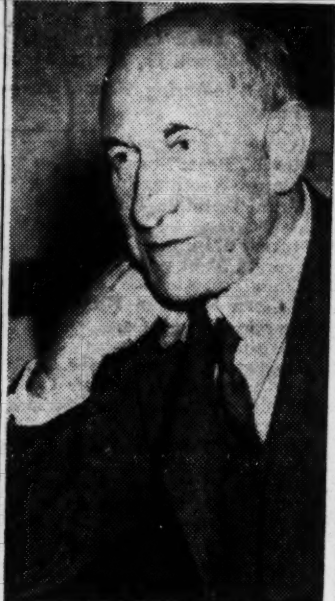

Dr. Pearson is regarded as one of the most distinguished specialists in his field in England. In 1910 he introduced collapse therapy in the treatment of tuberculosis in England and has been responsible for many of the later developments of this specialty. For 34 years he has served as superintendent of the leading British sanatorium for private patients at Mundeley.

Questioned as to the reaction to Dr. A. J. Cronin's Commentary on the British medical profession, "The Citadel," Dr. Pearson declared succinctly and with a touch of dry humor:

"While most British physicians feel that it is 'overdrawn,' it was widely read and seems to have made quite a bit of money for Dr. Cronin."

Dr. Pearson, with his wife and daughter, Miss Sylvia V. Pearson, has been on an extended vacation since January 16. He spent two weeks in Jamaica before coming to America. He will leave this morning for Chattanooga, and will visit in Knoxville, Kingsport, Tenn., and Charlottesville, Va., before returning to England early in April.

During his stay here yesterday he addressed members of the senior class of the Emory University Medical school.

For 34 years he has served as superintendent of the leading British sanatorium for private patients at Mundeley.

Questioned as to the reaction to Dr. A. J. Cronin's Commentary on the British medical profession, "The Citadel," Dr. Pearson declared succinctly and with a touch of dry humor:

"While most British physicians feel that it is 'overdrawn,' it was widely read and seems to have made quite a bit of money for Dr. Cronin."

Dr. Pearson, with his wife and daughter, Miss Sylvia V. Pearson, has been on an extended vacation since January 16. He spent two weeks in Jamaica before coming to America. He will leave this morning for Chattanooga, and will visit in Knoxville, Kingsport, Tenn., and Charlottesville, Va., before returning to England early in April.

During his stay here yesterday he addressed members of the senior class of the Emory University Medical school.

ECONOMY OR CHAOS, HARRISON WARNS

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Asks Conference of Leaders.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(P) Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, warned the nation today that it faces "economic confusion and chaos" if the "enormous" federal spending is continued and the national debt continues to mount.

Demanding a "radical and substantial" cut in expenditures to avoid additional taxes on business, the veteran legislator, who guides tax bills through the senate, declared in a formal statement:

"The government's fiscal picture must be carefully scanned, and that doesn't mean next year, but now—and it should be done through clear vision, and not through a colored lens."

Observing that substantial reductions could be made in spending by emergency agencies, Harrison said he would like to see a conference of responsible officials in the government, "from the President on down, called to map an economy program."

He told reporters to whom he handed his statement that an economy program, linked with definite assurances that there would be no tax increases nor any boost in the limitation on the national debt, "would be one of the biggest things that could happen to business in this country."

"We are confronted," he said in his statement, "with a budget which calls for over $10,000,000,000 in appropriations for the next fiscal year, and the total suggestion in the budget message of a deficit that will amount to three and a half billion dollars."

"This congress is to consider the legislation that would make possible these large expenditures. We have a national debt of $40,000,000,000 and a guaranteed underwritten debt of $5,000,000,000."

Debt Limit Fixed.

"The present law fixes the national debt limit at $45,000,000,000."

"With mounting expenditures and recurring deficits, it is inevitable that that limit will be reached about the first of July, 1940. Something must be done now to meet this serious situation. The government cannot continue to spend such excessive sums without increasing the limit to which the national debt may go, or without increasing taxes to provide the current revenue to meet the appropriations."

"Taxes are now so heavy that to increase them would add additional burdens upon American industry and the American people. Additional taxes would act as a deterrent to the revival of business, to the increased employment of people, and would handicap the government's effort to increase the national income."

"I am opposed, unless exceptional circumstances arise, to increasing by law the present limit of the national debt. The only way, however, to avoid this request coming to congress or the taxes being raised, is to be immediately a radical and substantial cut in government expenditures."

TOOMBS CALDWELL DIES IN ALABAMA

Former Insurance Executive Began Career With Atlanta Firm.

R. Toombs Caldwell, retired insurance executive and a former resident of Atlanta who had made his home in Birmingham, Ala., for the last 20 years, died yesterday at the Southland Highlands infirmary, Birmingham.

Mr. Caldwell was born in Pike county, Georgia, and moved to Atlanta as a boy. He started his business career as office boy with the Southeastern Tariff Association under Charles C. Fleming. He rose to successive offices in the organization and became manager of the Virginia office. Later Mr. Caldwell was appointed special agent for a number of insurance companies, and became an executive of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, for which he was Alabama agent until his retirement several years ago.

Surviving are a brother, H. C. Caldwell; a sister, Mrs. B. W. Torrance, both of Atlanta; two nieces, Mrs. Arthur Rylander, of Americus, and Mrs. E. J. Zimmer, of Wilmington, Del.; and six nephews, W. F. Manry Jr., William A. Caldwell, Cobb Torrance, Howell Caldwell and W. M. Heston, all of Atlanta, and B. H. Torrance, of New York.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

ATLANTANS PROMOTED IN ORGANIZED RESERVE

Promotion of two Atlantans and appointment of another to ranks in the organized Reserve was announced yesterday by Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

Joseph Albert Hall III, of 781 Techwood drive, was promoted to first lieutenant, Coast Artillery Reserve, and Miles Edward Hess, of 1241 Fairview road, was named first lieutenant, Cavalry Reserve.

Joseph Godwin Maddox, of 46 Bates avenue, was appointed a second lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps Reserve.

Corps area headquarters also reported that Captain Bert N. Bryan, of Marshallville, now on temporary duty at the Army Finance School at Baltimore, had been assigned to duty as property auditor, headquarters, First Corps Area in Boston.

EX-AMBASSADOR 'GUILTY' IN CRASH

Dodd Fined $250 in Hit-Run Auto Accident.

HANOVER COURTHOUSE, Va., March 2.—(UP)—Dr. William E. Dodd, one-time United States ambassador to Germany whose automobile struck a four-year-old negro girl December 5, was found guilty today of hit-run driving and fined $250. His driving license was revoked.

Judge Frederick W. Coleman said he did not impose a jail term because of the "impaired condition" of Dodd's health. Dodd's daughter, Mrs. Martha Stern, testified that the death of her mother had caused him "great anguish" and that his health had been impaired since that time.

Mark 14th Anniversary of Building and Loan League

Here are some of the officers and speakers assembled at the fourteenth anniversary dinner of the Georgia Building and Loan League Wednesday night. On the left, P. T. Anderson, of Macon; John B. Wilson, secretary of state; George W. West, donor of a portrait of the late Samuel Guyton McLendon, and John L. Connor, president of the Atlanta League of Building and Loan Associations, who presided.

It was in the office of the late Samuel Guyton McLendon (above) whose portrait was unveiled and presented to the state Wednesday night at the Georgia Building and Loan League dinner, that the league was organized 14 years ago.

BRAZIL, U. S. AGREE ON ECONOMIC PACT

Thawing of Exchange, Commercial Credits, Reported in New Pact.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(P) Brazil and the United States have agreed in principle, informed persons said tonight, on a three-fold program for economic and commercial co-operation.

Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, conferred with Secretary Morgenthau and Undersecretary of State Welles at the Treasury today.

Details of Agreement.

Informal persons said their agreement included:

1. Credits approximating $20,000,000 to free Brazil's frozen exchange, permitting payments now in arrears to American business.

2. Credits from the Export-Import Bank to finance exporters in this country seeking Brazilian markets.

3. Creation of a central reserve bank in Brazil, which would probably co-operate with the stabilization fund to secure greater stability in Brazilian national currency and foreign exchange.

The co-operation would be similar to that now given France and might authorize purchases of Brazilian milreis up to 40 or 50 million dollars.

Bond Question.

Aranha, who has been conferring with Francis White, of the Foreign Bondholders' Protective Council, said efforts to reach a provisional agreement were "well advanced." He said he planned to see White again in New York.

Plans meanwhile were reported under way for the creation of a Brazilian American Company in Brazil to promote development of non-competitive products for exports to the United States and elsewhere.

Aranha said no credits would be needed for the Central Reserve Bank and any arrangement made would be within the present limits of the stabilization fund.

It was believed the organization of the banks would include provisions for an exchange of agents by both countries to take care of operations accounts.

A joint statement by Aranha and this government was expected to cover all details of the agreement reached between the two countries after remaining technical detail had been settled. The announcement was expected Monday or Tuesday.

SUMTER SPLITS VOTE ON LIQUOR QUESTION

AMERICUS, Ga., March 2.—(P) Sumter counties were equally divided on the liquor question today, on a basis of complete unofficial count from today's referendum.

The tabulation showed 610 votes in favor of legalizing liquor in the county, while the same number of votes favored continued prohibition. Rain kept down the voting.

Wet and dry leaders awaited an official count at 11 o'clock tomorrow before mapping plans.

Portrait of Samuel G. McLendon Presented to State at Dinner Here

Founder of Georgia Building and Loan League and Former Secretary of State Honored as Organization Observes 14th Anniversary.

A portrait of the late Samuel Guyton McLendon, former secretary of state and founder of the Georgia Building and Loan League, will be placed in the office of State Secretary John B. Wilson, it was announced yesterday.

The portrait was presented by George W. West as a feature of the dinner Wednesday night in the Atlanta Athletic Club, marking the 14th anniversary of the organization. Mr. Wilson accepted the painting on behalf of the state.

John L. Connor, president of the Atlanta League of Building and Loan Associations, presided. Peyton T. Anderson, of Macon, for many years identified with building and loan associations, was principal speaker.

Discussing "14 years of progress," Mr. Anderson said: "Records in the office of the secretary of the Georgia league show that in 1924 there were 10 associations in the state with 4,614 members, including 1,109 borrowing members. Total assets of all associations were $1,382,441. Today there are 66 associations in Georgia, scattered all over the state, with more than 23,000 savings members and 15,000 borrowing members."

Mr. Anderson also gave a brief history of the building and loan idea, which began in Philadelphia in 1831.

Governor Rivers, judges, state, county and city officials attended.

ITALY CALLS CLASS FOR ARMY TRAINING

1918 Group Will Be Filled Out by Other Ages.

ROME, March 2.—(P)—Italy called her less-than-normal military class of 1918 to the colors today for regular military training and filled out its ranks with part of the 1919 military class and those rejected in calling three earlier classes.

Authoritative Italians said the number of conscripts thus called for service would approach a normal total of between 250,000 and 300,000 men.

The entrance of the new conscripts into the service will bring the strength of the Italian army up to about 500,000 men, exclusive of territorials.

The class of 1917, which was called a year ago, still has six months of its 18-month training period to go.

The Italian system of a six-month over-lapping training period gives the army its greatest strength during the summer months while the rest of the year, when only one class is in training, it falls to about 300,000.

MRS. ADDIE SPARKS MACON, SUCCUMBS

Wife of Circus Man Will Be Buried in Pennsylvania.

MACON, Ga., March 2.—(P)—Mrs. Addie Sparks, 54, who for many years toured the country and assisted her husband, Charles Sparks, in presenting a widely-known circus, died at a hospital here today.

A heart ailment and complications, including pneumonia, were given by physicians as cause of death.

Mrs. Sparks each year had charge of designing and producing all costumes used in what was first known as the Sparks circus, and later as Downie Brothers.

Only a few days ago, Sparks announced sale of the Downie Brothers show and said he would retire after many years under the "big top."

Mrs. Sparks was a native of East Brady, Pa., but had lived here 20 years, where the circus maintained its winter quarters. Burial will be at her former home in Pennsylvania.

Wet and dry leaders awaited an official count at 11 o'clock tomorrow before mapping plans.

DR. WEIDNER HEADS CANCER COMMITTEE

Elected Chairman of Fulton Executive Group at Organization Meeting.

Dr. G. L. Weidner, of the Atlanta Health Department, was elected chairman of the Fulton county executive committee of the cancer control drive of the Women's Field Army at the organization meeting, Mrs. Byron Mathews presiding. The second week in April was set for the intensive membership drive.

The committee ratified the appointment of Mrs. Ben Purse as radio chairman; Mrs. William P. Dunn as chairman of the speaker's bureau; Mrs. Charles Senter as chairman of the memorial gifts committee and endorsed the appointment of Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford as vice commander for the fifth congressional district.

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, commander of the Georgia Division of the Women's Field Army for Cancer Control, was present.

The Fulton county executive committee consists of Dr. Edgar Hill Green, president of Fulton County Medical Society; Dr. R. W. McGee, of the Fulton County Health Department; Dr. Weidner; Mrs. Lillian Alexander Austin, of the Atlanta Health Department, and Mrs. B. L. Shackelford, president of Women's medical auxiliaries.

"No more tired" let down feeling for me

"I feel and look better—there is color in my cheeks—my appetite is keen—my weight is back to normal."

"This I am noting in my Diary and I give full credit to S.S.S. for causing me to feel like myself again."

So we suggest—Don't try to get well in a day... this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel run-down... a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak—then do try in the simple, easy way of a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

Auto (?!?) Helps Owner to Operation

Oglethorpe's 'Little Henry' Is Auctioned Off—But New Driver Gives Up After Short Trial Spin.

College students' jalopies have been given credit for doing many amazing things, from operating on coal oil to carrying 16 students at a time, but yesterday one broke all records—it performed as first assistant at an operation!

The car is "Little Henry," long a colorful object on the campus of Oglethorpe University. Yesterday, complete with its anchor, co-ed autographs, fraternity insignia, and four tires, it was auctioned off to the highest bidder in the university chapel.

Proceeds went for a much-needed appendix operation of its student owner, Ed Schwabe.

Lucky winner in the auction was Professor Enrico Leide, associate in foreign languages at the university. It was "knocked down" to him for an undisclosed sum.

"I consider this one of my most fortunate moments," Professor Leide said yesterday when the "keys" to the car (a pair of pliers) were turned over to him by a committee of co-eds.

In Schwabe's behalf, Slay declared:

"You cannot realize the pleasure it gives me to turn this car over to you."

However, Professor Leide will turn the car, complete in all respects, back to Schwabe as soon as he returns to school, he said last night.

"After driving this interesting mechanical phenomenon around the block, I decided that it would take me too long to get used to throwing out an anchor instead of putting on the brakes when I wanted to stop," observed the canny new owner.

But the final straw that clinched the decision to return "Little Henry" was a brief shower, which successfully deflected Professor Leide as he made his first inspection trip.

"These open models are not for a man of my age," he declared as he stepped over the door and sloshed off to shelter.

CHEST BUDGET BODY TO LAUNCH WORK

Studies of Set-up Will Start Monday; Committees Are Appointed.

Community Chest budget studies will begin Monday with the needs of the group of agencies responsible for care and protection of children, it was announced Thursday by Dr. Herman L. Turner, past president of the Chest and chairman of the 1939 budget committee.

Date was set following completion Thursday of the membership of the recommending committee representing the agencies engaged in service to children.

This committee will include W. D. Thompson, representing Atlanta Child's Home; Mrs. Perrin Nicolson, Child Welfare Association; Mrs. W. D. Owens, Florence Crittenden Home; Armand May, Hebrew Orphans' Home; Mrs. Charles Currie, Hillside Cottages; Mrs. Earl Cone, Sheltering Arms.

The committee will discuss current needs with Dr. Turner and Mrs. Emmett L. Quinn, representing the budget committee, and its decision on allocation of funds will be submitted as a formal recommendation to the budget committee.

This new plan, Dr. Turner stated, is designed to bring about mutual co-operation among the agencies on the firing line of human need to agree on equitable allocation of available funds for the part each one is doing in the whole work for community welfare. It also will develop a much sounder basis for fixing the amount to be sought in the 1939 campaign next fall, Dr. Turner stated.

Allocations recommended will be reviewed by the board of directors of the Community Chest from the standpoint of the giving public before they are adopted, he said.

When "Little Henry," the 1926 touring jalopy that has long graced the Oglethorpe University campus, was auctioned off yesterday, Professor Enrico Leide, of the foreign language department, found himself in possession of the "keys"—a pair of pliers. With him here are the members of the co-ed presentation committee. These are, seated, left to right, Frances Bone and Mary Bishop, and, back row, Sara Chapman, Doris Waldrup, Audrey Thurs-ton and Mildred McKay.

After a successful appendectomy, paid for by the auction of his jalopy, Ed Schwabe is congratulated on both counts by two fellow students at Oglethorpe, Doris Waldrup and "Hunk" Slay.

WILLIAM E. HUDSON TAXICAB DRIVERS DIES IN VILLA RICA

Was Father of Former Assistant Solicitor of Fulton County.

William Everett Hudson, 79, father of former Assistant Solicitor John H. Hudson, of Atlanta, and a pioneer resident of Douglas county, died unexpectedly Wednesday afternoon at his home in Villa Rica.

Although he had been in failing health for several years, his condition had not been considered serious. He was one of the best known residents of the Villa Rica section and was a member of the Missionary Baptist church.

Also surviving are three other sons, W. E. Hudson Jr., of Villa Rica; E. C. Hudson, of Atlanta, and Earl R. Hudson, of Los Angeles, Cal., and a daughter, Miss Dana Hudson, a nurse at Bass Junior High school here.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the New Hope Baptist church in Villa Rica by Dr. Thomas F. Harvey. Burial will be in the church-

TAXICAB DRIVERS DISCUSS CONTRACT

Company Claims Changes Would Give Better Service to City.

Improved taxicab service for Atlanta was promised yesterday by officials of the Black & White Co. if negotiations with drivers for adjustment in wages or hours proves successful.

A. G. Hendley, vice president and general manager, said the drivers already had been notified their present contract calling for 40 cents an hour would not be renewed March 15. He said the company and labor officials would discuss a new wage-and-hour contract with an international representative who is scheduled to come here for a conference.

"If some adjustment is possible, either in wages or hours or by putting the drivers on a commission basis, I am sure Atlanta can look forward to better service," Hendley declared.

Rains Are Over, Cold With Frost To Clear Skies

Rains that sent Georgia streams out of their banks and caused thousands of dollars' worth of damage to lowland farms are over, the United States Weather Bureau reported last night.

Dry weather will be ushered in with a light frost this morning, bureau officials said, predicting a near-freezing low of 34 degrees. The day will be fair, with bright sunshine expected to dry out a moist state and send the thermometer up into the fifties by this afternoon.

Yesterday's high reading was 42 degrees, recorded at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the low was 39, registered at midday.

Meanwhile, the Flint river, swollen by steady rains, continued to rise at Monticello in Albany, while the muddy flood of the Chattahoochee reached its crest at Columbus and Euftaula, and began to subside. Montezuma reported 18.1 feet yesterday, and expected a crest of 20 feet today. The river at Albany registered 22.5 feet yesterday, with a crest of 24 feet predicted for either Sunday or Monday. Flood stage at both cities is 20 feet, but no material damage to either town is expected.

GEORGIA PAINTING GIVEN WESLEYAN

Edward S. Shorter, of Columbus, Donor of Picture.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MACON, Ga., March 2.—"Eagle Scout," a recent painting by Edward S. Shorter, of Columbus, has been added to the Wesleyan College art gallery.

Another work by Shorter, "Things From Mexico," is one of the 21 pictures by contemporary American artists selected for an exhibition now being held at the Butler Art Institute, Youngstown, Ohio. His work also has been given solo exhibition by invitation at the Corcoran Gallery, Washington; the High Museum, Atlanta; the Studio Guild, New York, and elsewhere.

"Eagle Scout" is the seventy-third addition to the Wesleyan collection begun in 1926, when the late Admiral William S. Benson, of the United States navy, presented a copy of Raphael's "Maddonna of the Chair" in honor of his mother, Mrs. Catherine Brewer Benson, the first graduate of the century-old school.

SAVINGS PROMISED STATE MOTORISTS

Gasoline Commission To Regulate Industry Urged as Economy Measure.

Establishment of a state commission to regulate the gasoline industry in Georgia would effect a saving of between $3,000,000 and $6,000,000 per year to motorists, the house economy committee was told yesterday by Guy Holcomb, chairman of the Georgia Petroleum Commission appointed last year to study conditions in the industry.

Holcomb asserted that unfair trade practices and price wars started by a minority element in the industry have cost motorists that much more per year. He and the commission recommended that a $10 fee be levied on retailers and that more adequate inspection of the industry be conducted from these funds.

The dealers would profit more by such regulation than under the present status where price wars prevail, it was said. The economy commission, recessing after the morning session, requested Attorney General Ellis Arnall to draft changes in the state purchasing law to prevent "possible monopoly or collusive bidding" on sales to state departments.

The committee recommended that all bidders be required to sign affidavits that they represented themselves, or a single company, and had entered into no agreement or contract with any other bidder.

Arnall also was instructed to prepare further amendment of the law to prevent heads of state departments from certifying purchasing orders permitting their employees to buy goods for their own use at state discounts.

On charges of nepotism in the State Health Department made by Representative H. B. Edwards, of Lowndes, the committee set Tuesday, March 7, for a hearing.

C. C. STYRON WINS FIREMASTERS' VOTE

crash came. Debris struck him a glancing blow, however, with terrific force.

Several firemen, including Redwine, were on the roof of the hardware company when the grocery company roof fell in. Chief Parker, fearing collapse of the former, ordered the men to the ground. Redwine was injured as he made his way down a ladder.

Bill Terrell, newspaper reporter, on duty reporting the fire, was ordered arrested by Lieutenant C. E. McCrary on a charge of disorderly conduct, interfering with an officer, as he was talking to Chief Parker.

Despite his protests and showing his police pass, Terrell was taken to police headquarters. He was later released on a copy after it was pointed out to the station lieutenant that Terrell was acting in the line of duty.

The fire was confined to the hardware and grocery stores. Chief Parker said strong fire walls between adjoining buildings prevented further spread of the blaze. The fire was brought under control after a stubborn hour and a half battle.

Styron, assistant chief, was recommended for the post of chief by the board of firemasters after Chief Parker formally notified the board he would retire March 20 after 41 years' service.

The board recommended Styron over W. B. Fannin, also an assist-

GLASS, TREASURY CLASH OVER MONEY

Morgenthau's Plea for Extension of F. D. R. Powers Meets Opposition.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP) Secretary Morgenthau's plea for an extension of the administration's broad monetary powers encountered the flat opposition of Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, today.

A senate banking and currency committee voted to delay action until next week on a bill extending these powers after Glass had charged that the President's authority to lower the gold value of the dollar had disturbed business.

Morgenthau, accompanied by a dozen treasury experts, had asked the senate group to extend until January 15, 1941, existing powers to devalue the dollar, to operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, and to coin new silver mined in this country.

The treasury secretary said these powers were "a shock absorber" that protected this country from unstable world conditions.

This brought an explosive protest from Glass, who was presiding at the hearing.

"I think the very fact you have this power has created the disturbance," Glass said, his voice rising and color rushing to his cheeks.

Morgenthau hesitated and then quietly replied that he disagreed with Glass.

Glass then read a lengthy statement asserting there was no reason to continue the devaluation authority, and declaring that this was "the best opinion of 55 outstanding economists from the leading universities of this country."

The Answer to a Hip Problem Is Always the Same—Exercise!

MY DAY: First Lady Spends Unforgettable Evening

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—We had an uneventful trip to New York city yesterday afternoon. On arrival, we went to dine at a French restaurant where crepe suzettes and, for a perfection. It seems to be the favorite dessert of the friends I had with me. Then we went to see "Mamba's Daughters," largely because Katharine Cornell, whose husband, Guthrie McClintic, staged this play, told me Ethel Waters really achieved a remarkable dramatic success in the character of "Hagar."

For me it was an unforgettable evening, so real that I could hardly believe that I was not actually on the plantation, or on the waterfront in Charleston, S. C. Poor, defenseless people, portrayed often by their virtues! It is to me an extraordinary, artistic success.

I went first to see Mrs. Thomas Lynch this morning before her husband's funeral, and I met her at her self-control. She felt, that after seven years of happiness, her world had fallen to pieces about her, for she and her husband and their little girl had seemed to live on a little island of intimacy. When you have been so happy, it is hard to be resigned.

I had not expected to see my mother-in-law in the church, but I was hardly seated when she came up the aisle. I went home with her afterward and sat for a while and talked with the three sisters—Mrs. Forbes, my mother-in-law and Mrs. Price Collier. Mrs. Collier is, of course, much younger, but as I looked at them all I thought what a wonderful trio they are—so full of vitality. Even Mrs. Forbes is still beautiful, with features and spirit which age, apparently, cannot touch.

While there, I looked down and discovered I had a run, clear up my stocking and decided I would have to go out at once to buy another pair. But my mother-in-law came to my rescue and insisted she could provide me with an entirely new pair. I put them on and wore them out of the house, warning her that they probably would never be returned!

An hour with the dentist and then to lunch with my aunt, Mrs. Stanley Mortimer. By 3 o'clock I was back at my apartment to attend to a number of things.

Claudette Colbert Receives A High Record Salary

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—Claudette Colbert is receiving slightly more than $40,000 a week for her current film, "It's a Wonderful World." Isn't this the largest salary on record? There is only one snag—work on the picture lasts only three and a half weeks (that's because Woody Van Dyke is directing it). . . . By the way, Miss Colbert will be extremely obliged if those well-meaning folk cease sending cards for her sinus trouble. She says her husband (Dr. Joel Frezman) is perfectly able to take care of her, thank you bill the same.

Highlights of the academy award dinner . . . Shirley Temple giggling and stretching toward the high microphone. "At the studio," she complained, "they air it down to my level." A chair is brought on which Shirley stands. And now she has to crouch because the microphone is too low . . . Bette Davis, after receiving her award—"My Oscar at home won't be lonely any more. What a shame there isn't sex in Oscars." . . . Alice Faye, with orange and glycerine. . . . The Earl of Warwick has a butler who is very interested in his master's attempt at a film career. Just before "Zaza" faced the cameras, the butler delightedly told a visitor to the Warwick home, "We are on our way to fame and fortune. His lordship has two lines on the tape. The two lines expired on the cutting room floor." (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Clark Gable is free to marry Carole Lombard this coming week . . . The biggest laugh at the "Let Freedom Ring" preview when Nelson Eddy performed the incredible and knocks Victor McLaglen cold. And all without displacing a single hair on his head. There is, however, one concession to realism. At the end of the brawl, Nelson's lip is cut and bleeding. In the movies, blood is simulated with ketchup or a mixture of lip rouge and glycerine. . . . The Earl of Warwick has a butler who is very interested in his master's attempt at a film career. Q. Should liquid manure be fed when cyclamens are blooming?
A. Feed liquid manure or dilute nitrate of soda semi-monthly during the flowering season.
Q. Give a recipe for Italian minestrone.
A. Five cups of meat stock, 1 cup diced celery, 2 onions, sliced thin; 1 cup finely shredded cabbage; 1-2 cup noodles, 1-2 cup diced carrots, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons fat, 1-2 teaspoons salt and pepper. Boil in Parmesan cheese. Melt the sugar and brown in a heavy kettle; add fat and celery and onions; cook 3 minutes; add vegetables and meat stock; boil gently until vegetables are tender, about 25 minutes. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve at once.
Q. How should mirrors be cleaned?
A. Mix a little powdered bluing, whitening or pumice stone with alcohol to form a thin paste. Smear the surface of the mirrors with this and before the alcohol evaporates, rub the mixture off. Polish with a silk or soft woolen cloth.
Q. When can a cat be altered?
A. The alteration of male cats should be left to the judgment of a veterinary surgeon, as after they have attained an age of one year the operation is somewhat dangerous. The alteration of a female cat is always dangerous.
Q. When combining bean flour with wheat flour for bread, what proportions are used?
A. About 4 or 5 cups of wheat to 1 cup of bean flour. This is done to avoid too much bean flavor and to get the benefit of the gluten in the wheat.
Q. What can be done to prevent fish odors from being absorbed by other foods in the refrigerator?
A. Wrap the fish in heavy parchment or cellophane.

Strong Teeth Will Prolong Your Youth

By Dr. William Brady.

On the principle that a "man is as old as his arteries," physicians estimate age by feeling the pulse and judging the degree of sclerosis (hardening) and loss of elasticity in the radial artery. Laymen generally estimate a person's age by appearances—color, carriage, smoothness or wrinkled appearance of skin, timbre (not loudness, nor pitch) of voice, baldness, resiliency of movements. I have always imagined the feel of the skin told me as much or sometimes more than any of these appearances, but aside from dryness or harshness to touch, the characteristic which distinguishes youth from age is difficult to describe. It may be a difference in temperature—I cannot say.

In the sixth, nearly if not quite the last, edition of the doctor's bible Osier said, "I am more and more impressed with the part played by overeating in inducing atherosclerosis." Osier added that George Cheyne's advice was never more needed than by the present (1906) generation. Cheyne reduced from 448 to 150 pounds when he was 30 and urged the man of 50 to begin cutting down on his diet if he wished to keep his sense and faculties in his later years.

From my study, experience and observation I am more and more impressed with the part played by the teeth in preserving and prolonging youth. I believe every tooth lost by disease, accident or design cuts two or three years off from the individual's life expectancy, unless its function is carried on by a suitable denture.

Every one knows how fast a person ages when many or all of the teeth are removed and not immediately replaced by artificial teeth. Most people today are aware of the insidious undermining of health and youthful resiliency by unchecked pyorrhea.

A common, unconsidered factor of pyorrhea is the loss or functional impairment of one or two teeth on one side of the mouth, back teeth that do not show if the mouth is kept carefully closed. This defect soon establishes the habit of masticating entirely on the other side of the mouth, and degeneration of tissues and development of pyorrhea in the gum tissues of the unused side of the mouth is almost inevitable. It is astonishing how many people still under middle age drift along more or less edentulous, from health to premature senility or semi-invalidism, just because they do not appreciate the value of good teeth or because they do not appreciate the value of good dentistry.

Unless there is some unusual complication, the well-advised individual who is compelled to have one or more teeth extracted should invariably have the bridge, plate or denture which is to replace the teeth lost, fitted and begin wearing it immediately, certainly within a day or two following extraction. Only crude antiquated practitioners, unworthy of patronage, keep patients waiting weeks and months for new teeth. (Copyright, 1939, for The Constitution.)

Good Manners Put You At Ease

Who wouldn't be proud of her? A man always feels lucky to be squaring a smooth-mannered girl. For whether you realize it or not, it does matter to men that you know your etiquette. They say nothing if you don't but watch them lose interest.

So check up on the rules. When your beau calls for you, greet him cordially, then introduce him to your family. "Mother, this is Robert Smith." "This is my brother Tom."

Ready to leave, let him help you on with your wrap—accept his arm as you step out on the dark sidewalk. But of course you won't play "clinging vine" in well-lighted public places.

And remember you make a man feel "small" if you dash ahead opening doors, getting unaided into automobiles, pulling out your own chair at restaurants.

Let him have the fun of doing things for you. He likes to feel that you are feminine—and likes to show he knows his etiquette too. But if you're hostess, have asked a man to be your escort to a dance, it's up to you to see that he meets other girls, doesn't feel a stranger. You're always a welcome guest, a popular hostess, if you know fine points of etiquette—the consideration to give and do.

When a guest on a motor trip, shall you ask your hostess if you can pay some of the expenses? Not unless she is a close friend—but you may suggest refreshments, pay for those.

Entertaining at dinner? Correct to invite other friends in for coffee to meet your dinner guests.

Be at ease in any social situation. Our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day," tells the correct thing to do at restaurants, movies, on dates—when dancing, motoring, visiting. Shows you how to be poised, charming all the time, everywhere.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

This New Deodorant Comes in Odors To Harmonize With Favorite Perfume

By Lillian Mae.

The season matters not. A person who wants to be immaculate and well groomed is always careful to make the proper use of a good deodorant. That much is established. But have you tried the new deodorant that is perfumed?

Yes, I know what you think—that such a deodorant would not be practical, because it would clash with your favorite toilet water, cologne or perfume. Well, it won't.

This new deodorant is scented to harmonize with any of the 30 most used perfumes on the market. The odor is not as heavy as perfume, of course, but has about the same strength of an eau de cologne.

All you have to do in buying it is to tell the sales person what perfume you use and she can immediately put her hand on the deodorant which matches that fragrance, whether it be a light floral odor, one of the Oriental scents, a more complicated mixture which exudes glamour, or an out-of-doors sports scent. And there are seven very masculine odors made especially for men.

The deodorant qualities neutralize the odor of perspiration, though they do not stop it. It is non-irritating, and if allowed to dry before putting on outer garments, positively will not stain clothing. The bottle is flask-shaped with a shaker top, which prevents waste. Or it may be used with an atomizer.

After all, a deodorant is something which cannot be recommended unadvisedly. But this is one I have used sufficiently long to know whereof I speak. I believe you'll be pleased with it.

Phone me for the name and the Atlanta stores at which it may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Analyzing A Safety Play

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Is it really worth while to bother with safety plays in rubber bridge games? Many players of limited experience have asked this question.

The answer is, obviously, "yes." Even though it has been the contention of some that too many overtricks are lost by refusing to try for the maximum.

Careful analytical check-up, however, appears to discredit the argument that the safety play is a losing policy. Take a typical elementary play for example:

(Dummy.)
S-A 10 9 8 (2) E
S-K 7 6 (5)
GIVES FIRST TRICK.

When it is necessary to avoid the loss of more than one trick in spades, any good bridge player knows the proper play is to lead the spade 5 and play dummy's deuce so long as West does not show out.

The question is, does this play prove a paying proposition in rubber bridge? Obviously, there is no argument in tournament play when even the most remote safety play is usually considered the best policy.

WHAT IT COSTS.
Let us see what happens in 100 tries to insure a worth 400 points in the invisible score, as against a penalty of 50 points going set, trying for an extra trick.

In 100 deals a 4-0 split can be expected 10 times.
Ignoring the safety play, there is a 50-50 chance that declarer will hit upon the right honor to lead and the Q J XX can still be picked up for the loss of one trick. The safety play, therefore, saves gam and the 30-point penalty five times in 100 deals with a 4-0 split or it is worth five times 40 points or a total of 2,250 points in 100 deals.

WHAT IT SAVES.
When the suit splits 2-2, declarer makes an extra trick if he plays for a drop by leading out his two top honors. A 2-2 split occurs 40 times in 100 deals, according to the law of averages.

This would seem at first to indicate the safety play would lose 40 times 30 or 1,200 points. Further delving into the law of probabilities, however, reveals that once in six times with a 2-2 break, when declarer leads low, the Q J doubleton will turn up in one hand and there will be no need for declarer to go through with the safety play at all. This cuts safety play costs down to 80 times

"You Just Can't Be Married And Live Life of Bachelor"

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
I hate to worry anybody with my trouble but the time has come when I have more than I can bear. I have a lot of faith in your judgment and your honesty so I am appealing to you. I was married 20 years ago at the age of 18, entirely too young. I provide well for my family, furnish them a beautiful home to live in and a car to ride in and don't object to anything they do or any place they go. I have never been a man to fuss at my family but always come home in a good humor.

My wife prefers to stay at home and lead a lonely existence while I love people and want some excitement occasionally. I am well liked and much invited to all sorts of gatherings. Also I take a drink with my friends occasionally. None of this is pleasing to her and we have trouble aplenty. Now tell me should I have these privileges or should I deprive myself of them and meet my wife's wishes?
L. G. G.

ANSWER:
Brother, you can't be married and live the life of a bachelor nor head up a family and at the same time behave like one of the children. Everything is wrong in your setup and nobody is doing anything to right matters.

A man can't discharge his family obligations with cash and a wife can't accept the things the cash buys without incurring obligations to the second mile with the man that puts up the cash. Suppose you do like to lead a life of a bachelor and she likes to lead a lonely existence, what's the reason the two of you can't compromise, each giving in occasionally? Why can't she go along with you now and then to the parties, even if she doesn't enjoy them as much as you do? Why can't you decline an invitation occasionally to sit at home and chew the rag with her?

Now be your age; get down to brass tacks and work out a practical plan for your life together. Even if romance is over, life must go on and it can go on pleasantly for any pair who will come to an understanding as to what each expects of the other, financially, socially and as two heads of one home, provided, of course, each is willing to compromise and do this for that.

If you'll try it, you'll discover that you can have privileges without feeling like a thief and your wife can have solitude without feeling like a martyr. CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Kick and Roll If You Would Have Slim Hips

By Ida Jean Kain.

How many actresses, we wonder, perform heroic feats of slimming to capture those fat and fairly rare roles that make for fame? The other day we heard of a top-flight motion picture player who flew into New York and registered at a Fifth Avenue salon that turns out figures like a John La-Gatta sketch.

She had been promised a certain choice role if her hip measurement were three inches less in two weeks! She didn't need to diet. Her weight was all right. All she had to do was work off those extra hip inches. At the end of the two weeks her figure was perfect and she was on her way back to Hollywood and that contract.

How did she do it? She had been instructed to repeat each of a set of exercises 300 times a day . . . so she did them 3,000 times every day! You didn't read about her doing the nightclubs—she was too busy doing her homework!

So strenuous an exercise program is certainly not recommended for the average woman. You couldn't exercise that much! It might endanger your health. And if the actress had been doing her special exercises every day for only 15 minutes, she would never have needed to work so hard.

The whole point is that you cannot keep a slim hipline unless you do exercise. We all sit too much and whatever weight we have gravitates to this measure. You may have too little weight, too much, or be just right, and still have a hip problem. You may be a thin girl with lumpy hips, or a stocky girl with chunky hips, or a normal weight with hips. The answer to a hip problem is always the same—exercise!

Rolling is one of the best hip reducers and also one of the easiest. You can roll as long as you please. And here is a special way of rolling to reach those annoying fat pads on the sides of the hips: Lie on the back on the floor with knees drawn up to the chest, arms straight out at the sides on the floor. Drop the knees over on the floor at one side, pull them up toward the outstretched arm, and draw them back to the chest. Then drop the knees over to the other side and repeat the performance. Keep the upper back flat on the floor, rolling at the waist. You will notice that drawing the knees up toward the arm has a grinding effect on the fat pad at the side of the hip. This is one of the exercises our ambitious actress included in her Amazonian workout.

Kicking is still the world's most streamlining exercise, but it is

Let Play-Room Save Your Nerves

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"Rainy days used to be the bane of my life," writes Rita L., "because with the children inside, it either meant letting them just about wreck the place or be eternally keeping after them. But my husband got the bright idea of an indoor playroom, a place where the children could really do as they pleased. So we cleared away a good big corner of our attic, sealed it up with wall board and finished the rest of the room roughly. My, now our problem is certainly not a bored brood, but the whole neighborhood wants to congregate in our attic. Maybe you think they can't raise a racket! However, I'm so glad they're entertaining themselves that I can bear with the noise very philosophically."

Little Damage.
The secret is partly, of course, in the fact that practically all bars are down in this playroom. The children can do anything here within the bounds of safety. This idea appeals strongly—the particular point that seems to have caught their imagination is the idea that they can even drive nails into things up here. They boast a lot about that in the neighborhood though actually they do almost no damage with their carpentry.

"The main lure of the room is that we have provided an indoor swing, an archery set and a work bench equipped with a good set of tools. We've also strung up a pulley curtain that draws across one end of the room, making a stage of sorts."

Hands-Me-Ups.
"The decorations for this room just aren't . . . we've left the wall board as is and the floors are covered with an assortment of cast-off rugs—for warmth in bad weather and for padding in case of spills. The curtains are hand-me-downs too, or, should I say, hand-me-ups! Benches around the sides of the room and a pile of old cushions provide seating facilities for quite a gang. These benches can be pulled out to make rows, when the "theater" is going strong.

"Sometime maybe we may paint the walls white and the woodwork red and have an aviation-design chintz for the curtains. I'd thought, too, of a linoleum floor inlaid in shuffle board pattern. But for the time being—while the children are at the rough-house age, I'm going to have things as they are."

"I thought that some of our readers might probably be interested in hearing about the way we've solved a problem that a lot of them might be facing."

strenuous. Begin your kicking routine with no more than 10 kicks a day, and increase the number very slowly. Sideward kicking strengthens the inner thigh muscles while slimming the hips. Stand first with the feet together and swing alternate legs in wide outward circles, trying to keep the foot at the same height throughout. In backward kicking, support yourself with one hand on a chairback at the side. Swing the legs from the hips and up in back, trying to swing a little higher each day. Try to hold the upper part of the body erect as you kick.

Popular Basic Dress By Barbara Bell

Young women who dress on a budget know the advantages of a simple, basic dress like design 1709-B, and for them we have designed the complimentary pattern that includes three smart accessories designs to wear with it (pattern 1709-B). The dress with simply flaring gored skirt has wide shoulders, puffed sleeves and a wearable squared neck.

For your wardrobe changes wear it with first the halter in pattern 1709-B, then with the flaring apron (pretty in new taffeta) and finally with the full-length bib apron tucked over the midriff and falling in lovely unpressed pleats. This last disguise can be used, too, to give a spring character to an old frock, particularly when made up in a pretty printed crepe.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1709-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 4 1-3 yards of 39-inch material. Pattern 1709-B designed in the same sizes, requires for size 14—1 1-2 yards of 39-inch material for bib-apron, 2 1-4 yards for apron skirt, 3-4 yard for halter.

Send for Barbara Bell's spring pattern book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon, with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step chart to guide beginners.

Price of pattern, 15 cents each. Price of pattern books, 15c. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Habersham Garden Club To Present Noted Authority in Lecture Here

By Sally Forth.

GARDEN-MINDED Atlantans are being afforded outstanding lectures this season, and announcement is made today that the latest horticultural group to present this instructive feature is the Habersham Garden Club, of which Mrs. Charles Currie is president. These prominent matrons have invited Alfred Carl Hottes, of New York, associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens, to appear here on next Thursday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The demand for bids to attend the lecture has been so great that the hostess club has been forced to issue invitations to only presidents and three members of other Atlanta garden clubs and a limited number of out-of-town guests. For his Atlanta lecture Mr. Hottes has chosen as his subject "Visions in the Garden." Sally is informed that he is well versed on this subject and, in addition to being a member of the editorial staff of one of the nation's leading garden magazines, he has written many books on garden subjects. Mr. Hottes is a native of Ithaca, N. Y., and a graduate of Cornell University, where he received the degree of master of sciences in 1914. For 12 years he was professor of floriculture at Cornell. Among organizations with which he is affiliated are the Society of American Florists, and Ornamental Horticulturists, American Iris and Rose societies.

Preceding the lecture, the speaker will be honored by the Habersham Club at luncheon to be served at a flower-decked table at the Driving Club. Mrs. Frank Carter is chairman of arrangements for the lecture, and she is being assisted by Mrs. Dugas McCleskey, Mrs. W. E. Dure and Mrs. John B. Flitts. The latter is in charge of the luncheon, to which special guests will be invited, including Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, of Columbus, president of the Garden Club of Georgia; Mrs. Joseph McK. Spear, of Augusta; Mrs. W. T. Perkinson and others. In addition to Mrs. Currie, president of the club, other officers include Mrs. Walter Dure, vice president; Mrs. Marcus Emmert, treasurer; Mrs. Ralph Ragan, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Frank Cogins, recording secretary.

MARY CURTISS does not mean to suggest the perils of skating, perhaps, to the guests invited to her skating party next Thursday. Nevertheless, she has adorned her attractive invitations with a sketch, done in red and black, of a girl on skates just in the act of being upset, her hands and feet waving wildly in the air, and a group of stars suggesting her consternation.

The hours of the party are from 5 to 7 o'clock, and it will be held at the Roller Drome on Penn avenue. Invited are 250 members among Mary's friends of the school set. The hostess is a senior at North Avenue Presbyterian school and a member of the O. B. X. sorority.

Chaperoning the party will be Mary's mother, Mrs. Gordon W. Curtiss; Miss Mary E. Cavenaugh, Mrs. Edward P. Brantley and Mrs. A. H. Carrier Jr.

MUCH interest is being shown by children anticipating the concert to be given by Hugh Hodgson on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the ballroom of the Woman's Club. The program will consist of numbers of special interest to children of school age. One mother was explaining the program to her musically-minded young son, saying, "And the 'Fire Music' is from one of Wagner's operas." Being a very modern youth, he replied, "Well, I hope he plays 'Flat Foot Floogie,' too."

SOMETHING new in the way of dance motifs will be presented this evening when members of the Co-Op Club of Georgia Tech entertain at a "mechanics' ball" at the new gym at Tech. The Co-op dances are high lights on the college social calendar and this evening's party will be no exception.

In the first place, the boys will wear overalls and dark shirts, while the girls will wear "little-girl" gingham dresses. The grand march will be led by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Williams when the orchestra plays "The Anvil Chorus" from the opera "Il Trovatore."

GLIMPSED at the buffet supper given Wednesday by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine honoring Grace Moore, following her concert: The beautiful blond singer literally "holding court" in the Paine drawing room as she sat on the sofa before a circle of admirers. . . . Alex Smith admiring Miss Moore's many medals of honor which she had made in miniature and wears in bar fashion. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Dick Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mahon, all of Chattanooga, who came here to hear "Sister Grace" sing, listed among the Paines' guests. . . . Mrs. Alex Smith with her broken wrist in a sling. . . . Mrs. Ewell Gay making a date for luncheon with Mrs. Charles Clapp, of Savannah; the Paines' canary bird singing as if performing for the famous American songbird. . . . Louisa Robert looking very chic in a peppermint-striped satin as she greeted her father, "Chip"

Robert, who made a surprise visit here and attended the party. . . . Charlie Yates sitting cross-legged on the floor at Miss Moore's feet as he enjoyed his supper. . . . Mrs. Ed Inman wearing an unusual necklace of varicolored metal fish. . . . Mrs. Frederick Williams Jr., of Bristol, R. I., the former Margaret Nelson, of Atlanta, discussing mutual friends in Charlotte, N. C., with Miss Moore. . . . Young Douglass Paine Saffarans dressed like a "big girl" in a long taffeta dress. . . . Mrs. William Saffarans and Mrs. Tom Paine looking smart in respective models of red and blue crepe and each wearing orchids. . . . Mr. Paine dancing with Mrs. Jimmy Johnson, who looked unusually smart with her old-fashioned coiffure. . . . Leo Taubman, Miss Moore's accompanist, denying he knew why the singer had the front pleat of her dress pinned with small straight pins, the secret being that the singer dropped her lipstick on her skirt and she covered the streak by cleverly pinning a pleat.

Garden Center Opened By Marietta Clubs.

MARIETTA, Ga., March 2.—The Marietta Garden Center was formally opened here on February 6. The Flower Garden Club, assisted by the Highway Garden Club and the Bridal Wreath Club, sponsored the project.

The feature of the opening was the showing of a series of slides giving in color the most popular gladioli, arrangements of flowers, and famous gardens of other states. The slides were accompanied by the reading of a lecture prepared and sent by the national committee. The hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. R. A. Fine, chairman of the Garden Center committee; Mrs. Len C. Baldwin, co-chairman, and committee members from each of the sponsoring clubs.

Special guests were members of all the garden clubs of Marietta and Cobb county and the 4-H Club Girls of Cobb County. Mrs. Henry Meiner presented narcissi and gladioli bulbs to each guest. Reference books and garden encyclopedias are now in the center for the use of the gardening public. A question box is conveniently placed so that definite problems can be brought directly to the club members for helpful solution. Of special interest is the often changing display of locally grown flowers brought to the garden center by the garden club members.

Miss Cato Whelchel, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David P. Whelchel and sponsor of the Tau Delta Tau, national high school fraternity, will be honored this evening at the fraternity's annual formal dinner-dance at Druid Hills Golf Club. Miss Whelchel is a popular student of the junior class at Washington Seminary and is a member of the Phi Pi sorority.

Harvey Hill Elected President Of Nine O'Clocks Organization

Harvey Hill was elected president of the Nine O'Clocks at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon preceding the tea dance given by this prominent organization at the Piedmont Driving Club. Mr. Hill succeeds Epps Brown as president and James H. Franklin as re-elected secretary and treasurer.

New board members elected were Epps Brown, Jack Adair and W. C. Wardlaw Jr. Retiring members of the board were James Dunlap, Charles Gardner and Harvey Hill.

The tea dance was one of the outstanding features of the early spring social calendar and marked the third brilliant dance given by the group during the regime of Mr. Brown.

Several hundred members of society gathered for dancing between 6 and 8 o'clock in the ballroom of the club, where a popular out-of-town orchestra furnished music for dancing. The ballroom was divided into two sections for the affair introducing a novel feature in arrangement. One-half of the room represented a cabaret scene, while the other was a living room where informal groups gathered between dance numbers. After the dancing hour, many congenial parties assembled for informal no-host dinner parties.

Escorted by Mr. Brown, Mrs. Francis Gilbert wore a spring model of black crepe trimmed in white pique and her hat was a small black straw model offset by white trim. Mrs. James Dunlap wore a black crepe, featuring a bolero jacket effect, and her small hat matched. Miss Jennie Tate, of Marietta, who was accompanied by Charles Gardner, was attired in an early blue model, worn with hat and accessories to match.

The Nine O'Clocks give two brilliant dances during the winter season, the first being on Thanksgiving Eve and the second, which is a colorful fancy dress affair, takes place on New Year's Eve. During the past year, a new note was introduced in the organization's calendar and the Thanksgiving holiday dance was in the nature of a costume beach party, given in lieu of the regular formal dance.

Capitol View Garden Club Makes Plans.

The Capitol View Garden Club met recently with Mrs. J. F. Pennington, 1464 Hartford avenue. Mrs. Essie Smith served as co-hostess.

New by-laws were adopted and plans completed for a cooking school April 3, 4 and 5, and a party at Southern Dairies March 17.

An interesting talk on "Perennials and Rock Gardens" was given by Mrs. J. F. Whitley, of Adair Park Garden Club. Present were Mesdames J. F. Whitley, M. R. Bowen, C. M. Bolen, E. H. Batchelor, L. B. Jones, A. E. Jones, J. A. Kilgore, J. F. Pennington, J. E. Simpson, Essie Smith, H. S. Gibson, R. C. Williams and J. M. Turner.

Y.W.C.A. To Hold 'Flowers on Parade' To Be Theme Of Twelfth Annual Flower Show

"Leisure Does Have Its Points," will be the skit entertaining Y. W. C. A. members and friends today. Mrs. Everard Richardson Jr., membership chairman, will preside. Mrs. Jack Yarbrough will give the invocation and Mrs. Roy Booker, dean of the leisure time department, will speak on the Wednesday classes.

Mrs. Charles Biggers, Leisure Time Club representative on the membership committee, will introduce the skit, and those taking part are Mrs. L. L. Orr, Mrs. J. L. Sargent and Mrs. William Jameson.

As this is an interpretative program, depicting the work of the Y. W. C. A. before the community, each member is requested to attend the luncheon and bring a guest. Mrs. Emmett Quinn planned the menu and will be assisted in serving by Mrs. J. S. McMahan, Mrs. I. Leonard James, Mrs. Howard See, Mrs. Walter McDonald, Mrs. Frank Fair, Mrs. Edward Merritt directs decorations for the tables.

At 11 o'clock today the Leisure Time Council meets to discuss plans for spring entertainments and delegates to the Southern Regional Y. W. C. A. conference to be held in Nashville in April. Because of this club's keen interest in the association's policies and programs, members have expressed desire to meet national leaders and hear the important phases of the work which will be considered at Nashville by volunteers and professional leaders. Members of the council are Mesdames Hansell Ellis, G. C. Allen, W. C. Lawson, V. J. Yarbrough, Percy Bouck, Ruth Tucker, C. L. Dunton, J. L. Sargent, Harry Glone, Charles Biggers, L. L. Orr, Henry Gay, Olin Wages, C. D. Schiffman, Raymond Pavlovsky, E. D. Meadows, Cecil Davis, Glee Thompson, G. W. Brownlee, Miss Geraldine Farrow.

Mrs. Will W. Alexander is chairman of the Leisure Time committee and assisting with this work are Mesdames Everard Richardson, R. K. Babington, D. R. Longino, Granger Hansell, H. R. Albion and Lawrence Mansfield.

"Flowers on Parade" was chosen as the theme of the 12th annual spring flower show of the garden division of the fifth district Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held on May 2 at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Plans for the show were discussed at a recent meeting of the division.

Mrs. Oscar Palmour presented Mrs. Chester Martin, flower show chairman and guest speaker, who announced her co-workers as follows: Staging and construction, Mrs. L. O. Freeman; decoration, Mrs. Oscar Palmour; entries, Mrs. J. H. Phagan; classification, Mrs. J. L. Kilgore; arrangement classes, Mrs. Charles N. Walker; Mrs. Raymond N. Snead and Mrs. W. M. Wender; specimen blooms, Mrs. C. E. Key.

Mrs. E. R. Anderson, of the Forest Park Garden Club, presented the garden clubs' Current Events. The Peachtree Park Garden Club was welcomed as a new member of the federation, and was presented the attendance prize for having the largest number of members present. The prize was a Kalanchoe presented by the hostess club, and Mrs. Raymond Snead was presented a dahlia tubers for having the largest number present in her attendance group. Representatives of Murray Lake Garden Club of Conley, and a new club in the club drive section, were visitors. Mrs. T. A. Slaughter, plant exchange chairman, asks members to bring bulbs, plants and seeds to be exchanged at the March meeting.

Mrs. John D. Evans, president of fifth district Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, introduced the dogwood seal chairman, Mrs. Roy Beam, of the West End Woman's Club, who urged clubs to contact her for the dogwood seals. Mrs. L. O. Freeman, chairman of the division, had charge of the meeting and the garden division of Grant Park Woman's Club, was hostess club, Mrs. L. B. Forbes, president, and Mrs. R. H. Savin, chairman of the garden division.

Garden clubs present were Sylvan Hills, Forest Park, Peachtree Park, Althea, Bird and Flower, Roxboro, St. Charles, Cheshire Bridge, Brookhaven, Oakland City, Fairburn, Narcissus, Cascade, Mayflower, Adair Park, Virginia Avenue, Whitford Club, and the garden division of the following civic clubs: Georgia Power, Kirkwood, East Point, Boulevard Park, Atlanta Woman's Club, College Park, Hapeville, West End and Grant Park.

Mrs. Ott To Confer On Easter Seal Sale.

Mrs. Esther M. Ott, from Elmira, Ohio, will be in Atlanta Saturday, Sunday and Monday in the interest of the annual Crippled Children's Easter seal sale.

Mrs. Ott is the assistant to the executive secretary of the National Society for Crippled Children of the United States of America, Inc. On Saturday she will be in consultation with George B. Yancey, president of the Fulton County Crippled Children Society, and Clayton Burke, secretary.

Mrs. Ott will address the members of the committee of the Fulton County Crippled Children Society on Monday at 12:30 o'clock at the home of the Atlanta Elks, 736 Peachtree street. She understands the problem of executing the seal sale, as she has conducted six national sales successfully. Mr. Yancey will preside.

Revellers' Club.

The Revellers' Club met recently at the home of Miss Martha Plunket, 810 San Antonio.

Present were Misses Dorothy Ross, Edna Souther, Evelyn Little, Alice Ross, Betty Brown, Doris Collins, Margaret Ross, Martha Plunket, Billy Abbott, Ivan Collins, Marling Hicks, Bob Garrison, Reed Shipley, Walter Ferguson, Clinton Braden, Bill Hailzipp, Jack Ferguson and Emory Downs.

Color

Lime green . . . the color of limes splattered with sunshine. Cyclamen, a singing orchid-red, that lends a blush to your cheeks. Japonica . . . the color of freshly turned earth at sunset. Lavender and fuchsia . . . to remind you of violets, wet with dew. And don't forget the fragile, flattering pastels. Take a navy tailor . . . add a cyclamen blouse . . . pin a lime flower on your lapel . . . a swish of cyclamen veil on a navy straw. Or . . . throw a pastel plaid tweed coat over a lavender sheer woolen . . . draw on cyclamen gloves to hold a purple bag. Combine these shades with your basic color . . . blend and mix them yourself, but do it judiciously . . . wisely . . . deftly, with the touch of a master.

This black sheer crepe enters the color race with a sure bet . . . a glowing, cyclamen bodice that wears a huge bunch of purple violets.

The glove: Soft, washable doeskin . . . beautifully executed in chamois, pink, beige, white, grey, navy, cyclamen, and gold.

The color? Japonica! This lovely alpaca sports a suave little tufted jacket of the same material. 'Twould be smart with navy and lime accessories.

To bloom on your dress or suit. This posy comes in rose, Royal blue, cyclamen, lime, fuchsia, and purple.

They're boon companions, these three: the circular skirt of diagonal wool, the soft little pull-on, and the yarn-embroidered cardigan. Glorious colors . . . Lime-tree green, Daffodil yellow, rose, violet, blue, and fuchsia. Have fun . . . mix 'em!

Shiny, sparkling, patent leather makes this shaggy flower for your suit lapel. All the new colors.

Wide calfskin belt, taffeta lined, that comes in all the new colors.

IF YOU FEEL SUNK Read this and cheer up

Are you so blue that life is no longer worth living? Do you cry easily? Do you feel low, moody, depressed—just absolutely SUNK? Then here's good news for you in case you need a good general system tonic—just take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and tone up your system, so that it can more easily throw off the "blues" and give more energy to enjoy life. MILLIONS of women have depended upon this Compound and have passed the word along to friends and neighbors, and to their children. Why not take Pinkham's Compound and go "smiling thru"?

Mrs. Herbert Lee Ellis and her handsome young son, Herbert Lee Jr. Mrs. Ellis was before her marriage Miss Lill Johnson, of Hartwell.

By leaping into the tree, Perry O'Rourke had escaped the springing lion, but now he looked up into the cruel eyes of a snarling leopard. Hastily he unsling his rifle and threw it to his shoulder. As the jungle terror launched itself full upon him, he fired!

With screams of rage and pain the wounded brute hurtled down upon O'Rourke, knocking the rifle from his hands. Together man and beast tumbled to the ground below. In the trail, the lion roared savagely and gathered himself to spring upon the fallen man!

Not far away, Tarzan of the Apes traversed a jungle trail, accompanied by Paul D'Arnot, of the French navy, who for years had been his closest human friend. Together they had undertaken to run down a slave-trader who had managed to elude the colonial authorities.

The sun rode slowly down to the western horizon. Through the jungle resounded the roars and cries of beasts of prey. To them the dimming light of day was a signal that they must start soon on their nocturnal forays. Suddenly Tarzan halted, sniffing the air.

DIES AT AGE OF 62

Fertilizer Company Representative Will Be Buried in College Park Today.

B. H. Abbott Sr., 62, of 46 Custer avenue, Hapeville, representative of the Southern Chemical Agricultural Corporation, died last night at his home.

A native of Warsaw, Ga., Mr. Abbott spent the early part of his life here and later was transferred to Columbia, S. C., returning here about a year ago. He had been in the fertilizer business for 35 years, and was well known both in Georgia and South Carolina. He was a son of the late Armistead T. and Savannah Howell Abbott.

Surviving are his wife, the former Maude Allen; a son, B. H. Abbott Jr., of College Park; a brother, W. A. Abbott, of Duluth, Ga., and a half-brother, Calvin Parsons, also of Duluth.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of A. C. Hemperley & Sons by the Rev. Firley Baum. Burial will be in College Park cemetery.

A. C. WEEMS DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Gideon Society Associate Collapses on Street.

A. C. Weems, 70, of Rome, Ga., collapsed on the sidewalk on Walton street, near Broad street, yesterday afternoon and died before he could be taken to Grady hospital. A heart attack was said to have been the cause.

Mr. Weems, who was here on a business trip, was well known throughout the state and was connected with the Gideon Bible Society.

Surviving are a son, Dr. Howard Weems, of Sebring, Fla., and two daughters, Mrs. Frank Quillen, of Augusta; Mrs. Ike Donkile, of Greenville, S. C., and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condon.

MORTUARY

CHARLES E. WINEGARDNER, 53, of 300 Rawley street, S. W., retired barber and resident of Atlanta for 40 years, died unexpectedly yesterday morning in a private hospital. Surviving are his wife and a sister, Mrs. W. J. Beyer. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning at the funeral home of Charles F. Schilling. Burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Before Mr. Nolen Richardson walked in, I had read of the arrangements for food made by Gabriel Paul, secretary of the Cincinnati Reds, at the Tampa training camp, and so I took a long look at the trim shortstop. He may never look the same again.

Nolen, who stepped into the Reds' lineup in the latter part of last season and made good, departs today for Tampa. He will not eat en route. Gabriel Paul is responsible for that.

I showed Nolen the statistical report on comestibles compiled by the Reds' secretary, and the lean look almost disappeared as he read it. "Sounds good," Nolen declared.

Here, by the way, is Gabriel Paul's report—"Three gallons of milk daily, five gallons of orange juice, five gallons of ice cream, 16 pounds of butter and 50 loaves of bread, about 150 pounds of steak daily, except on Friday, and then about 175 pounds of fish."

This does not mean, of course, that each individual on the Red roster will consume that much food and drink, but the total is a bit staggering in itself.

And so we agreed, Mr. Richardson and I, that the Reds may not win a pennant, but surely they'll be up there swinging at the dinner plate.

Incidentally, the Reds are figured as one of the top contenders in the National League this summer and Nolen hopes he will be able to do his part.

The former Georgia boy was a sensational shortstop in the Double A's for years before getting his big chance with Cincinnati last year, and the chance was so long in coming that Nolen isn't counting his chickens before they hatch or crossing any bridges before reaching the approach in regard to this season.

"I expect to have some lively competition from such fellows as Billy Myers, whom I beat out last season, and Red Brown, who played shortstop for Nashville last season. I'm just hoping for the best," Nolen added.

McKECHNIE IS TOPS.

Bill McKechnie, the canny Scot, is the best baseball manager Richardson ever played under, he said yesterday.

"He not only commands the respect of his players but opposing players like him, too," Nolen pointed out. "The main thing about him, I guess, is that he is understanding. He never rides his men."

"In that connection, I'd say he is one of the finest handlers of men I ever saw. You often hear it said of him that he is baseball's finest handler of pitchers. And I am sure that must be true, too."

The Reds had a lot of sensational freshmen last year and a lot depends on how these fellows come through as second-year players. If they develop, the Reds may win a pennant.

The pitching staff leaves very little to be desired, embracing, as it does, Paul Derringer, Lee Grissom, Johnny Vander Meer, Bucky Walters, Big Jim Weaver and others. Ernest (Snoo) Lombardi is a great catcher.

In the Reds' outfield will be Ival Goodman, Harry Craft and Walter Berger. Richardson points out this combination has about everything necessary—plenty of punch and plenty of defense.

The infield will have Frank McCormick at first, Linus Frey at second, Richardson at short (according to his performance of last season) and Charley English at third.

The Reds are very likely to offer trouble this season. The roster of experienced men and rookies is most impressive. The only thing that may hold them back is Gabriel Paul's menu.

The Redlegs may eat themselves right out of the league before the season opens.

TIGERS THUMP BULLDOGS, 50-28, IN FINAL GAME

Fourth-Seeded Georgia Never in Game, Behind 25-14 at Half.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 2.—Georgia tonight ran smack into a red-hot L. S. U. team which apparently made all its mistakes against Sewanee in the afternoon and the Tigers bounced the fourth-seeded Bulldogs right out of the sixth annual Southeastern conference tournament, 50-28.

As said, the Bayou boys could do no wrong. They made impossible shots. And missed very few. Everything they threw at the basket seemed to drop.

On the other hand Georgia had hard luck on her shots all night. If Roy Chatham fired one shot at the basket only to have it rim around or bounce out, he must have had 50. Kirkland was in the same boat. He fired numerous seemingly accurate shots only to have them roll off the rim.

BROTHERTON HOT.
Paul Brotherton, given much attention by the Bulldogs who watched Walker Cress get 14 points against Sewanee in the afternoon, was the big shot of the Tiger attack. He got 17 points.

Kirkland did a good job of guarding Charlie Bozeman, the league's leading scorer, but Brotherton was tough enough to turn the trick.

Georgia's rather futile attack was led by Kirkland and Kelly, who got seven points each.

Cress added 11 for L. S. U. He was the main reason for the Tiger victory as his 6 foot 4-inch frame was a powerhouse under the basket.

Georgia was just too tight for her own good. The sophomores were unable to get going to play the game they are capable of. And then, too, the Tigers couldn't miss.

Besides L. S. U., the Vanderbilt Commodores, Tennessee Volunteers and Kentucky Wildcats advanced to the semi-finals. Tennessee will play Vanderbilt tomorrow night and Kentucky will meet L. S. U.

After getting off to a 3-0 lead, the Bulldogs suddenly lost their eye for the basket and L. S. U.'s Bozeman and Brotherton combined to give the Bayou Tigers a 25-14 lead at half-time.

The final two points of the Tigers came when the bell had ended the half. However, the ball was in the air and the goal counted.

ONE-HANDED SHOT.
Kirkland drew first blood with a neat one-handed shot from the right. Chatham added a foul shot but L. S. U. took command and built up a 16-5 and then 23-11 lead.

Georgia was getting plenty of shots but was missing. Roy Chatham, left-handed ace, fired at the basket numerous times only to have the ball roll from the rim or bounce out of the hoops.

Georgia's Kirkland and Killian had trouble with the elongated Walker Cress, L. S. U. guard.

Despite their loss, the Bulldogs closed their most successful season since 1917 up with an enviable won-and-lost record during the season, a fitting tribute to Elmer Lampe's first-year coaching job at Georgia.

Lampe's five was the second seeded team to go out of the tournament in the first round, Alabama being beaten by Vandy this afternoon.

And so, Tech, the defending champions; Georgia, one of the contenders, and your reporter's visit to Knoxville ended quite abruptly.

Wildcats Rally To Trample Rebels, 49-30

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 2.—(AP)—Staging a belated rally after being fought toe-to-toe for more than three-fourths of the game, the Kentucky Wildcats came from behind with a rush to defeat the Mississippi Rebels handily, 49 to 30, tonight in the second round of

Crackers Picked To Finish in 2d Division Fans Want Mailho in Right; Hitting Is Sacrificed for Speed

Editor's Note: The belief seems to be growing that the Crackers will find the road long and rocky this season. The Constitution's roving reporter interviewed a group of fans yesterday who were unwilling to concede the Crackers a pennant.

JACKETS DROP CLOSE BATTLE

Lead Changes Six Times in Second Half; Egger Is Hero.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 2.—Tech's visit to the Southeastern conference tournament here ended abruptly this morning when the younger name, Burnell Egger, got red hot and almost personally eliminated the defending champs, 42 to 38, in a first-round game.

Egger shot 19 points, 14 of which came on field goals, mainly of the one-handed species.

George Smith and Junior Anderson closed brilliant careers with the game and turned in sparkling performances. Smith kept the Jackets in the running with 12 points in addition to playing a bang-up game under the baskets.

Although hobbling almost pitifully on his bad leg, Anderson was the spearhead of the Tech defense and added eight points to the Tech total.

Mississippi had to fight all the way for her victory. The lead changed hands six times in the second half as both teams put on spurts to go temporarily in front.

The Jackets went off the court at the half, holding a 17-16 advantage. The Rebels of Frank Johnson came right back and scored three rapid field goals to lead, 22-17. Tech knotted the count at 25-25, went ahead, 27-25, but Mississippi tied it up again at 30-27.

The Rebels took the lead at 31-30, trailed, 31-33, and with six and a half minutes left tied it up again at 35-35. With two minutes left, Keller sank a field goal and put the Rebels into the lead, 39-37.

Tech was never able to tie it again although a free throw by Anderson left them only a point behind. However, Peoples sank a gift shot and Egger fired his final blast, a one-hander, to give the Rebels victory.

Tech was handicapped by losing two players via the foul route. Jim Williams, who played a good game, was lost early in the second half and Smith went out with about two minutes to play.

"Joe DiMaggio Would Help."

Anderson, second base.
Rubeling, third base.
Peters, shortstop.
Durham, pitcher.

That is the lineup Johnny Moon, of 12 North Elbridge, would like to see open the season against Joe Engel's Lookouts at Ponce de Leon park on April 14.

Johnny Moon knows his baseball. He is well posted on all sports. He won an automobile picking football winners. And then he won enough gas and oil to run it a long time. He won a season pass at Ponce de Leon park.

LOIS SKINNER.
"Can't Punch Out of Paper Bag."

And he won a radio. Folks first thought Johnny was lucky. Now they look upon him as an expert, and eagerly seek his advice on sports problems.

Johnny Moon thinks Paul Richards will make a mistake in switching Emil Mailho from right to left field. He points out the little Frenchman is an artist at picking line drives off the wall and cutting potential doubles to singles. He doesn't know anyone else on the club who could handle the job so well.

Moon believes Mailho and Bolling will be Atlanta's only 300 hitters. He thinks the Crackers have sacrificed hitting for speed and are sadly lacking in punch. And yet, he hesitates to pick any other club to beat them to the wire.

"They might turn out to be hitless wonders like the old White Sox, or like Jake Atz's Fort Worth pennant winners," he said.

Lois Skinner, of 443 Ponce de Leon, is rather positive about her likes and dislikes. She insists the Crackers will miss the punch supplied by Hill and Rose. And she remembers that Buster Chatham was rather potent in the pinch. "Can't see them winning the pennant as they stack up today," she said. And she didn't smile.

"Joe DiMaggio would be a big help." That astounding statement came from Dorothy Gordon, attractive blonde who lives at 309 Dargan street. "Yes," she said, "the Crackers can't punch their way out of a paper bag. Joe DiMaggio would surely be a big help."

"Too much is expected of Johnny Rucker," thinks G. F. Smith, of 859 Capitol avenue. "He is a great ball player, but the Southern league is no pushover—particularly for one so inexperienced."

Smith admits the Crackers have speed to burn and a swell defense, but reminded the reporter that it took runs to win ball games. "And where," he asked bluntly, are they going to find two pitchers to replace Sunkel and Beckman. I tell you, I don't like the looks of things."

"Well, Mr. Smith, where do you pick the Crackers to finish?" "Somewhere in second division. But I hope I'm wrong."

G. F. SMITH.
"It Takes Runs to Win Ball Games."

G. I. A. A. CROWN TO BE DECIDED ON FIVE GAMES

Old Rule Voted Out at Meeting; Track Slated at Night.

By ROY WHITE.
Five games will be necessary for members to claim the G. I. A. A. football championship, it was voted Thursday at the annual spring meeting at Boys' High school. A previous rule of three games, voted last year, was abolished and a vote to table the new motion also failed to carry.

Atlanta's five members and the Georgia Tech Athletic Association will join forces in sponsoring the annual track and tennis meets, to be held Friday and Saturday, May 5-6.

The preliminaries in the track meet will be held in the afternoon and the finals at night.

FIRST UNDER LIGHTS.
It will be the first time in the history of Atlanta that a high school track meet has been planned under the lights and all 14 members of the G. I. A. A. will enter teams.

M. C. Paget, G. I. A. A. C. Ward, Boys' High; Frank Kopf, Tech High, and Louis Van Houten, Marietta, were named on the committee to complete details for the track meet.

Tom Collins, Tech High, was named chairman of the tennis committee. Shorty Doyal, Gabe Tolbert and M. C. Paget were named to complete details for the May meeting of the G. I. A. A. to be held Friday night, May 5, at Georgia Tech.

Richmond Academy's invitation to sponsor the G. I. A. A. golf tournament, May 12, was unanimously accepted with thanks. Each school will be allowed four participants and the tournament, a 36-hole medal competition, will be played over the Augusta Country Club course. A. P. Markert was named to supervise the golf tournament.

AQUATIC COMMITTEE.

W. R. Crowder, Boys' High, and H. C. Savage, Tech High, were named to complete details for the annual swimming meet and the dates were set for either May 5 or 12.

G. M. A., through Douglas Woodward, athletic director, offered to sponsor the swim meet, Darlington, at Rome, and the University of Georgia Athletic Association were understood to have wanted the swimming, so the committee was instructed to select a site and make all arrangements. Representatives at the meeting were guests at the Boys' High Athletic Association at a luncheon preceding the meeting.

CHAMBLEE WINS IN 5TH DISTRICT

STONE MOUNTAIN, March 2.—Chamblee and Stone Mountain were winners tonight in games in the fifth district girls' basketball tournament.

Chamblee got off to a good lead and was never threatened in their 32-26 victory over Druid Hills. Trailing at the half, 15-14, Stone Mountain came back strong to nose out Covington, 22-21.

LOVE COMES LAST

Bart Takes Nina, Andy to See Laura,
Who Is Visiting the Cromwells

By JULIA ANNE MOORE.

INSTALLMENT XXII

"Father tells me you want to get out of the city for a time. If you can find it in your heart to be charitable, I should so like to have you come to our place for as long as you find it possible to stay. We plan to go out in time for dinner tonight and will be more than pleased if you will go with us. Please, please give me this opportunity to make at least partial amends for something for which I shall be deeply ashamed always. I will call you here at your office at 11... Sincerely, Hannah Cromwell."

Laura sank into her chair and read the note a second time, slowly, thoughtfully. Was this the girl who had slapped her face in public a few days ago? It seemed impossible, and yet the words rang true. Either Hannah was genuinely contrite or she was devilishly clever and Laura was disposed to give her the benefit of the doubt.

Dale, she reasoned, had gone home and told his daughter that he had it from Laura herself that she was not interested in Bart. Perhaps he hadn't done it quite so clumsily as that, but had somehow let her understand she had nothing to fear from Laura. And Hannah, thinking it over, had come to the conclusion that she had made a complete fool of herself and done Laura a grave injury in the bargain.

This left her no choice but to accept the invitation—provided, of course, Bart agreed to her plan to begin work on the Spring Dawn serial at once.

But Bart was not in. She asked his secretary, to call him at his apartment and was informed that, according to his valet, Mr. Ford was indisposed and could not be disturbed. This message brought a smile to Laura's lips, for she knew that Bart's indisposition was nothing more serious than sound sleep after their night of celebrating for landing the Spring Dawn contract.

It was not Hannah but Dale who called at 11 o'clock. He said, "Hannah is buying out some women's apparel shop, so I promised to call you if she was not here by eleven. You will come with us, Miss Wiley?"

Laura explained that she had not had an opportunity to talk with Bart, and Dale said, "You leave Bart to me. There will be a car at your disposal while you are with us and you may come into the city every day if Bart needs you?"

"All right," she said at last. After a moment's silence, he said, "You are coming as our guest, Miss Wiley, and I want you to try to enjoy your little visit here. I explain that because after our little talk you may feel that I expect you to go out of your way to win Hannah's friendship, which is not the case. Your presence in the house will do that, I am confident."

Laura was not at all sure. It was a question that was to grow increasingly troublesome in the week ahead, but now she pushed it aside and gave her attention to deciding what she should take with her in addition to a portable typewriter and a supply of paper. Ready and waiting for Dale and Hannah that afternoon, an old fear formed in her mind. Suppose Nina should want to get in touch with her while she was away? Or Andy, if anything should happen to Nina? Which, though she tried very hard not to admit it, was the real basis of her uneasiness. She had worried about Nina for years. She supposed, in spite of everything, she would go on worrying about her.

It was 10 o'clock when Bart arrived at the office Monday morning and found Andy Cooper already there. Andy seemed a little subdued, but during a discussion of business conditions, particularly as they affected the new Bridgehaven office, Andy's enthusiasm increased rapidly as he outlined his plans. At one point he said:

"You've probably discovered by now that I've been giving more and more attention to small accounts. With conditions as they are, the big firms are overcautious and no amount of salesmanship can get very far. But in the Bridgehaven district there are any number of smaller concerns in fairly good shape and I've been going after them on the theory that what is needed most at the moment is volume. Not forgetting, of course, that some of these small businesses may in time become important clients."

Bart agreed with that. "It's a lesson we learned in '29 and the years immediately after," he said, "of no mind to let his Bridgehaven office executive think for a moment he had discovered something new. 'Small accounts add up,' he said, 'and in an area such as yours you would be very unwise to sit back and wait for big fish when you can have the small fry almost for the asking.'"

The smaller accounts Andy had brought in hadn't been assured for the asking, but Andy did not argue the point. He said, "We're in agreement there, then. I wasn't sure what your attitude would be."

As they talked it came to Bart that Andy Cooper was a little too anxious to make a case for himself and the new branch office. He might have reassured him. He might have said frankly that the Bridgehaven office had delivered more than its share of new business. But that wasn't Bartley Ford's method. To praise was to imply satisfaction, and he was never satisfied. He said, "By the way of ending the discussion: 'We can't expect a new office to pay its way overnight, Cooper. At the first opportunity I'll run up for a day and we'll look over the field and see what can be done.'"

But he hadn't brought Andy Cooper to New York for this. He had brought him here for the single purpose of observing his meeting with Laura—and Laura was at Dale Cromwell's.

Andy was on his feet, prepared to take his departure, when he said, casually, "My wife came down with me and she is naturally anxious to see her sister while we're here. Do you happen to know if she's in?"

"Miss Wiley?" Bart said, rising. "Unfortunately, she's not."

Perhaps, he thought, it was just as well. If Laura had been in love with this man, she certainly was not in love with him now and the less she saw of him the better. And yet he couldn't leave it there. He couldn't say simply that Laura was out of the city when it was Laura's sister who wanted to see her.
